

Dogs And Blondes Shun You? Maybe It's Your Vibrations

VIENNA, Mar. 15—If beautiful blondes run away at your approach; if dogs growl at you without explanation, cheer up, maybe it's not your face after all.

Might be your vibrations — "body radar."

That is the theory put forward today by Austrian Psychologist Dr. Hubert Rohrer.

er, who says the human body sends out minute vibrations that, for good or ill, affect all our daily lives.

"At some future date," said Dr. Rohrer, who has written tomes on the subject, "man may have to memorize his 'vibration quota' just as he now mentally jots down his shoe size, blood group, or pulse beat."

The 47-year-old psychologist admitted that "this is rather futuristic, but it may be the eventual result of research now under way."

Tests already undertaken, Dr. Rohrer said, "have established the fact that there can be no mistake as to the existence of body vibrations." He went on:

"The existence of such vibrations leads to a number of hypotheses which may look fantastic at first sight, but which are very plausible.

"It is very likely that the vibrations emanated by man, and relayed to the air that surrounds him, play an important role in creating sympathy or antipathy between two persons, depending on whether their vibrations correspond or do not correspond.

"It also can readily be assumed that the body vibrations are responsible for the relaying of pitched-up emotions from one person to another, which thus may explain the hysteria of mass meetings."

Dr. Rohrer said it is also possible that the mysterious ability of blind persons to "feel" an obstacle before they actually touch it may be caused by the reflection of their own "vibration radar."

"From a physical point of view," he stated, "the process is nothing but vibration of sound whose frequency is so low the human ear cannot hear

it. Animals, however, can probably hear the vibrations emanated by humans as a very low sound. This may explain the astounding scent of some animals. He said:

"The vibrations, which are very minute, can be neither seen nor felt.

"Their frequency varies from person to person at 7 to 18 cycles per second. There is no typical difference of the vibrations between men, women or children, except that their constancy varies from person to person."

Which seems to mean that if you are having trouble in your personal relations — with blondes or dogs, among others — you may just be operating on the wrong frequency.

New Plants Talked Industries Eye Local Sites

Possibility of persuading at least two new industries to move into Circleville was discussed Monday during a meeting of the local Chamber of Commerce.

A. V. Osborne, chairman of the chamber's new industries committee, reported that interest in the now vacant New Idea plant has increased.

He said that manufacturers from Cleveland and Erie, Pa., have queried the committee about the plant. He said the Cleveland firm employs "about 100 persons, mostly women, in its present location." Nature of the business was not revealed.

The Erie firm, Osborne said, probably would employ about 165 men if located in Circleville. The firm produces metal parts for washing machines. Osborne quoted representative of the company as saying the move away from Erie was desired because the company had outgrown its property there, had no further room to expand.

"They were much impressed with the New Idea plant," Osborne continued. "But they wanted to know what the Chamber of Commerce would offer as an inducement to bring them here."

"THEY SAID that other towns had offered such things as a building constructed to their specifications, 20 years to pay for it and five years free of expenses, rent or taxes.

"I told them that if they had been offered that, they should go there. But I also pointed out that in Circleville they would find no labor troubles, that they would have no transportation difficulties."

Osborne said the New Idea plant has about 27,000 feet of factory floor space and about 1,400 feet of office floor space. He said sale of the plant is being handled by a Columbus real-

Screen Moppet Admits Hoax

HOLLYWOOD, Mar. 15—Screen Moppet Lora Lee Michel, who said she fled her foster parents home in pajamas because "they beat me" and "I was always hungry," confessed today that it was all a fantasy.

The nine-year-old star, who had ravenously gulped milk and food to support her story of maltreatment told Juvenile Court Judge A. A. Scott that the scratches on her leg were received in the filming of a recent movie and not from a thrashing at the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Michel.

Newsmen, who saw the $100-a-day star enact her role, termed it a "wonderful scene" worthy of a screen "Oscar."

2 Army GIs Plead Innocent

SALZBURG, Austria, Mar. 15—Two American Army enlisted men, one from New York and the other from Bolivar, Mo., pleaded innocent today at a public court martial on charges of kidnapping an Austrian and handing him over to the Russians.

According to the Army, both men, Sgt. John Franky, 29, of New York City, and Cpl. Paul Abel, 26, of Bolivar, confessed when arrested Feb. 10.

The Army said they had admitted kidnapping Oswald Elder, Viennese civilian, for the Russians and were paid $250. The men face life imprisonment if found guilty by a jury of seven officers and five enlisted men.

RISE IN STately ELEGANCE, the new United Nations secretariat building in New York is almost ready for occupancy. In the foreground of this future monument to world peace are rows of steel posts marking the sites of other UN structures which will soon be erected.

YANK POLICIES HIT

Poland Asks To Withdraw As World Bank Member

WASHINGTON, Mar. 15—The World Bank announced today that Communist-dominated Poland has asked to withdraw as a member of the international lending agency.

A bank announcement said that the request was made in a letter to the bank by Polish Ambassador J. Winiewicz. The bank said the letter "has been referred to the board of directors and that a reply would be made in due course."

The World Bank is composed of 48 member nations, four of which are located in Eastern Europe. They are Finland, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

China, although controlled by a Communist government, is still represented on the board of governors of the bank by Nationalist representatives.

In its letter requesting withdrawal from membership, the Polish government charged the bank with "political discrimination" in its lending policy. The Polish ambassador asserted that "the bank has violated its statutory requirements." He added:

"THE BANK has in no way contributed to the reconstruction of nations ravaged by war and has adopted its policy entirely to the needs and directions of the United States government to the detriment of the other countries."

Winiewicz asserted that "a glaring instance of this is the question of the loan to Poland." He said:

"The Polish government fulfills all the conditions imposed by the articles of agreement. Despite this, as is generally known, the bank refused to grant Poland a loan, because Poland rejected the proposition of acceding to the so-called Marshall Plan, which had as its aim the subordination of Europe to the United States and the rebuilding of the war potential of Germany.

"Today there can be no possible doubt as to the injurious political and economic results of this plan."

Bank spokesmen declined to discuss any phase of Polish negotiations regarding a loan. They declined further to say whether an application had been made for a loan.

The Polish ambassador continued in his communication that the bank made loans to the Marshall Plan countries designed "to a large extent for consumption purposes" which he said was "contrary to the distinct provisions" of the bank's articles.

And he charged that the bank "clearly supports the expansion of American capital in the territories of those nations and openly opposes the basic conditions namely the principle of their political sovereignty and the principle of their industrialization."

Williamsport school patrons are scheduled to meet at 8 p. m. Thursday in the school auditorium to discuss plans for building a new athletic plant.

Superintendent Jud Lanman of the Williamsport school said a meeting was held last Thursday for the same purpose, but that the session was poorly attended and nothing was settled.

The superintendent explained that a $45,000 bond issue for construction of an athletic plant was passed in 1945, but that a series of restrictions plus the prohibitive cost of building materials has threatened to stymie the plans.

At present, physical education is at a minimum in the Deer Creek Township school, and all home basketball games are played in the community's Sulphur Springs Pavilion.

Lanman and the Williamsport board of education are expected to be present to lead discussion on the proposed building program. A representative for a contractor also is expected to attend to quote probably building costs.

Stop At Red Light Costs $14

CLEVELAND, Mar. 15—Sometimes it may be cheaper to pass a red light and pay a fine.

In the case of Arthur Sondag, 23, of suburban Euclid, it cost him $14 when he stopped for a light today. A gunman entered his car and robbed him of the $14.

3 Councilmen Are Named To Police Probe Panel

WALLACE PREFERS ARMY

Another Officer Quits Local Police Department

One of Circleville's most promising young police officers quit his post Wednesday to enlist into the U. S. Army.

Officer Earl Wallace, who joined the local force July 8, 1949, turned in his badge at 4 a. m. Wednesday.

The resignation of Wallace whittles down the law enforcement staff of Circleville to six policemen and Police Chief William F. McCrady.

Wallace said the resignation was not because of the conflict between the department and Circleville city council but "because of higher wages, better chances of advancement and the better retirement system" of the Army.

Officer Elmer Merriman, one of the six remaining fulltime officers on city pay, has been absent from duty for several weeks because of an eye injury which required surgery. He is in a Columbus hospital.

Circleville first learned that the prospect of losing Wallace from its police ranks was probable Feb. 27 when Charles Scott, another recent addition to the force, resigned to continue law study in Franklin university in Columbus.

SCOTT'S RESIGNATION followed a new assignment of hours posted by Chief McCrady which the officer claimed would not permit him to carry on his studies.

Wallace enlisted for a three-year hitch in the Army Tuesday in Columbus. He is scheduled to travel to Ft. Knox, Ky., Thursday for assignment.

The officer submitted a letter of explanation along with his resignation. His statement was: "In view of the current circumstances and in order to forestall any rumors or suppositions as to my resignation, I wish to make this statement.

"My primary reason for resigning from the Police Department to enlist in the Army is more monthly pay, more chance for advancement and that the

Ohio Quakers Deduct 'War' Levy From Tax

XENIA, Mar. 15—The government is going to be out some of its regular quota when it begins tabulating the 1949 returns of Mrs. Caroline F. Urie and six of her "peacemaker" followers.

Mrs. Urie, a Quaker widow of Yellow Springs, and six other Yellow Springs Quakers are refusing to pay that portion of their income taxes which they figure the government will use for war purposes.

Mrs. Urie is an old hand at this sort of thing. Twice before she has deducted the 30-odd percent "war purposes" portion from her total payment.

Two years ago Mrs. Urie filed an estimate for 1948 income and paid her entire tax, less 34.6 percent she thought would be used for "war purposes." However, the rate was reduced that year, and inadvertently she actually paid her entire tax.

Last year she filed an estimate and "reduced" 32.3 percent before starting payment on a quarterly basis. Thus, she will not become officially delinquent in payments until tomorrow.

Others who are joining the widow in non-payment this year include Dr. and Mrs. Horace Champney, the Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Templin and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dyer.

New City Rule Book Due Off Press Soon

Circleville police and firemen next week are expected to be handed printed instructions for keeping their feet on the path of duty.

Safety Director C. O. Leist said a book of rules detailing the way police officers and firemen must conduct themselves while on duty is expected to be off the press early next week.

"In general," said Leist, "the rules follow those in effect in Columbus. There are no provisions for rank in the book, beyond that of the chief and the mention of a desk sergeant."

"It will be understood that whoever is on desk duty will be acting in the capacity of a desk sergeant. The book also defines emergency duties for police and firemen."

The safety director said about 50 books will be printed, half to be passed out, the rest kept on hand as replacements.

No officer will be able to say he lost his book—not without being issued another one.

THIS IS SENATOR Joseph McCarthy, (R) Wis., who has been getting headlines recently with his long list of alleged Communist sympathizers employed by the U. S. State Department. Denials have been vehement. A Senate committee is continuing the probe, will hear all those labeled pink by McCarthy.

RED DUE TO LEAVE MONDAY

Gubitchev Changes Mind Again; He's Going Home

NEW YORK, Mar. 15—Council for Valentin Gubitchev, first Soviet citizen ever convicted of spying in the United States, announced today that Gubitchev is going back to Russia after all.

Just yesterday it was announced that Gubitchev, facing 15 years in prison if he did not leave this country within two weeks, planned to stay and fight his conviction with an appeal.

Today's new turnabout was announced to Federal Judge Sylvester Ryan and U. S. Attorney Irving Saypol by Gubitchev's lawyer, Abraham L. Pomerantz.

The announcement apparently means that Gubitchev's departure—now rescheduled for Monday on the Polish Liner Batary—will be on the U. S. government's terms. This means his appeal from his conviction will be withdrawn.

Saypol had insisted that if Gubitchev persisted in his appeal, he could not return to Russia. Yesterday, Pomerantz said the appeal would not be withdrawn and that Gubitchev would remain while it was fought out in the high courts.

IT WAS THE contention of Saypol that Gubitchev, by going back to Russia but at the same time pressing his appeal, was trying to "have his cake and eat it, too."

Today's announcement by Pomerantz was made without any apparent new consultation with Gubitchev himself.

The court session was brief, taking but five minutes. Pomerantz was accompanied by Yuri Novikov, third secretary to the Soviet embassy in Washington.

Gubitchev will be taken under heavy guard to the Batary Monday after Judge Ryan, in a technical procedure, reimposes sentence upon him and formally announces its suspension.

Meanwhile, Judith Coplon, 28, the Justice Department political analyst who also was sentenced to a 15 year term as a co-defendant with Gubitchev, remained in the women's house of detention in Greenwich Village. Efforts to raise $40,000 bail for her freedom pending appeal were unsuccessful yesterday.

Solon Lashes 'Mad Dogs' Of Movie Industry

WASHINGTON, Mar. 15—Sen. Johnson, (D) Colo., awaited public reaction today to his tirade against the film "Stromboli" and his fiery denunciation of those connected with it.

Johnson, chairman of the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, said he would wait a few days before setting hearings on his bill to protect public morals through control of what he termed the "mad dogs" of the movie industry.

In a Senate speech, Johnson attacked the Italian-made movie as a "stupid film about a pregnant woman and a volcano."

He termed its producer and father of Ingrid Bergman's child, Roberto Rossellini, "vile and unspeakable" and a "home wrecker."

In Rome, Rossellini expressed surprise that the Bergman-Rossellini-Stromboli story had been brought into the official American record. He declared:

"Senator Johnson said so much. He said everything. He threw the book at us. There's little I can say."

Is Everybody Happy On T-Day?

WASHINGTON, Mar. 15—Today is T-Day, and you had better observe it or take the consequences.

Internal Revenue Bureaus throughout the country will stay open until 5 p. m. (local time) to help citizens file their income tax returns.

But if you don't make it, you had better have a return in the mail, postmarked midnight or before, or face the consequences—a five percent penalty.

Crites Due To Head Committee

Fact-Finders Seen Working Quickly

Names of an investigating committee to probe into the doings of Circleville police department were revealed Wednesday by President of City Council Ben Gordon.

Appointed as chairman of the three-councilman committee was George Crites, whose fiery charges against Police Chief William McCrady set off the firecracker chain of events leading to a council order for a full-blown investigation of the cop shop.

Gordon appointed Councilmen Ray Cook and Walden Reichelderfer as the other two members of the committee.

Gordon said he had given no instructions to the committee on when it should start its probe. However, it is assumed Chairman Crites will lose little time in calling the investigation and getting the whole affair fully aired as quickly as possible.

"The committee, I believe, represents a pretty good cross-section of both sides of the affair," said Gordon. "With a balancing factor, to boot."

Cook previously has plugged for moderation in the drive to oust the police chief from office, which the councilmen do not deny is the main point sparking the investigation.

IT WAS AT COOK'S insistence that council agreed to a committee meeting with the fiery Irish cop boss last month. The meeting, out of which came only defiance from McCrady, was held to discuss a pending ordinance to reduce the chief's pay from $211.75 per month to $150.

Reichelderfer, however, has been described as "an unknown quantity." He has had little to say on the subject, either in council or out.

The order for an investigation of the police department came during the last regular session of council, following a request from a former city patrolman, Charles Scott.

The ex-cop appeared before the legislators to request that a probe be made into "gross inefficiency and malpractice in the police department."

Scott, who resigned as a police officer the day before he appeared in council, suggested that council appoint an investigating committee, and that the committee call individual members of the police department in and give each a chance to air his opinion.

The ordinance to reduce the chief's salary was introduced in council before Christmas by

Let's Eat More, End Surpluses

CINCINNATI, Mar. 15—A farm counselor proposes a method to reduce farm surpluses—eat them.

Dr. Karl D. Butler told the United States Wholesale Grocers Association here that if the "incentive of competitive enterprise was allowed to work more freely, farmers themselves would produce more and more livestock products."

Aiming his criticism at the government subsidy plan, Dr. Butler said his program would "make it possible for the wage earner and all of us to eat better and at reasonable prices."

Crites Due To Head Committee

Councilmen George Crites and Ray Anderson. It states that the chief under Ohio statutes receives compensation in addition to the regular salary paid by the city, and gives the reason for the cut as a desire on the part of council to equalize the salaries of "various city employees upon the basis of their positions."

CRITES EXPLAINED that under state law the chief is entitled to a portion of the costs of some cases tried in mayor's court. He said that with this added to his regular salary, McCrady makes more than Fire Chief Talmer Wise.

But the storm which was generated in council with introduction of the pay reduction bill, calmed after Emmitt Crist, attorney for Chief McCrady, informed the city fathers that passage of the ordinance would result in immediate filing of a law suit against the city. The matter appeared finished when the bill was tabled Feb. 7, the date it was due to come up for third reading.

One councilman declared council had been "out-bluffed."

But on Feb. 21, near the end of a long run-of-the-mill session, Crites rose, clutching a sheaf of notes.

With a lengthy speech he waded the matter to hurricane proportions, urged his colleagues to order the salary bill off the table for third reading and vote. Crites, during his speech, charged McCrady with:

1. Protecting local gamblers.

2. Threatening to suspend patrolmen who asked permission to do something about gambling.

3. Refusing to cooperate with other law enforcement officials.

4. Bungling the job of lifting fingerprints.

5. Not enforcing parking meter laws.

6. Tearing up parking tickets.

7. Failing to wear proper uniform.

Lacquer Coating Given Volumes

A sharp, penetrating odor permeated Pickaway County probate court Wednesday.

It came, Judge George D. Young explained, from lacquer being applied to 140 legal volumes to prevent deterioration. Work was being done by Edwin H. Sweeney of Stewart, who said the work would be completed in one day.

The volumes, which included Ohio State Reports and Ohio Jurisprudence, were oiled first, then given a coating of lacquer. "Some of them have a sheepskin binding," Judge Young said, "and if the bindings are allowed to dry, they begin to flake off. They stay serviceable longer if kept oiled."

Chamber members agreed that inducements to manufacturers to move plants here were not to be offered. They would "offer cooperation, but no money, no credit."

Conditions in Circleville were compared with industrial centers in the East. Concentration of industry, a competitive labor market, an unfavorable tax situation and the presence of Communism were parts of the picture painted of eastern cities.

But in Circleville, the chamber agreed, a new industry would be entering a peaceful community where Communism is non-existent, where there is no strife or labor unrest and where the labor problem is not top-heavy.

Osborne also reported that a Columbus concern, employing about 1,000 men, is still showing interest in the Circleville area for a factory. A 30-acre site is

Autoist Cited After Crash With Cyclist

A 24-year-old Williamsport Route 1 man was injured at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday on East Franklin street when his motorcycle was struck by an approaching auto.

Officer Rod List said the accident happened in front of the Circleville fire department involving an auto driven by Margaret Strawser, 27, of 360 Weldon avenue, and a motorcycle operated by A. R. Westenbarger of near Williamsport.

List said the auto had been travelling west on Franklin street and was on the wrong side of the street, hitting the Westenbarger motorcycle head-on.

Westenbarger was thrown to the pavement by the impact and rolled against a parked car, the officer said. The cyclist was taken to Berger hospital, where he was treated for abrasions of the forehead and nose.

The auto driver was released on $25 bond on an accusation of reckless operation filed in mayor's court.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

If the man who was yard detective at the East River tugboat terminal 40 years ago will drop around to my office, I'd like to present him with a pair of down-front tickets for the show playing at my theatre.

What did the yard dick do to rate these front-row ducats? Well, I can't answer that one without sketching in a bit of my bumptious background.

The year Senator Taft's pop became President, the Roses were living in a railroad flat on the lower East Side—four rooms in a row, each with a window that leaked cold climate.

Our central heating system consisted of a squarish stove in the kitchen, and the cost of coal being what it was (15 cents a bag), it was seldom that the home fires were burning.

Most of the time I went around the house with a lady's stocking stretched over my ears, but when it got so blustery that even that didn't help, I would stick an old flour bag into my pants, ease my way into the yard back of the tugboat terminal south of Manhattan Bridge, and swipe as much coal as I could carry from the piles used to fire the boilers of the tugs.

Then, as now, I was built close to the ground and fast as all get-out, so I usually got away clean as a clinker from the yard detective—an oyster-faced little man whose idea of a good time was to catch two coal thieves at once and knock their heads together.

ONE MURDEROUSLY cold February, I was stuffing a sack with choice chunks of anthracite when the dick sneaked up and caught me blackhanded.

"Don't ya know what happens to kids who steal?" he said.

I could have told him they get warm, but decided not to.

"Don't tell me—let me guess," he went on. "Ya got a poor old mother and unless ya bring home some coal she'll catch her death of cold."

"How'd ya know?" I said.

"I also suppose yer old man hasn't worked in six months."

"It ain't that long," I said, "but he don't make much even when he does work."

"A dozen times a day I hear the same story," said the yard detective. "I know it like I know my name."

Suddenly, to my unbelief, he handed me the bag of coal and walked away. "Don't let me catch ya again," he said.

As I got to the gate he yelled,

"Wait a minute," and scaled a silver dollar in my direction. "Maybe this'll help out."

I picked up the buck, floated out of the yard and kept floating until I came to a vacant lot on Rivington Street where a bunch of my pals were making a snow man.

"Did ya get it?" one of them asked.

"Nothing to it," I said.

WE USED TWO lumps for the eyes, a large chunk for the nose, a few smaller pieces for the mouth, and there was enough left over for a row of buttons down the front and a belt clear around the middle.

What did I do with the dollar? Well, there was a little cutie on Rivington Street who had never given me a tumble, and so I offered to buy her a hot chocolate at Slifkin's drugstore.

"You mean you got money?" she said.

"I not only got for hot chocolate," I bragged, "but for movies and after, maybe, ice cream."

"That would be peachy," said the little doll, flashing the kind of smile that in later years I had to give up diamonds to see.

Well, there it is, the nasty little secret I've been harboring for 40 years. I won't go so far as to say it's been keeping me awake nights, but—well, I'd feel a lot better if the old yard detective were to pick up those down-front ducats.

Feel Tired? Medic Says Try Swim

Swim Of 21 Miles
Steady, That Is

LONG BEACH, Cal., Mar. 15 —The next time you have that tired, run-down feeling, try this formula prescribed by and for Dr. Stephen A. Seymore:

Run a little bit for exercise—say four miles a day, and taper off with a swim—say 21 miles without stopping.

That's what the noted osteopathic surgeon, who, as plain Steve Seymore holds the American javelin championship, uses as his conditioner for track meets.

Dr. Seymore recently made his "English Channel" swim—in the 75-foot pool of the Pacific Coast Club.

The distance is the same as that from Dover, England, to Gris-Nez, France, the busily traversed route of Channel swimmers.

Steve, who remained in the pool from 15 to 17 hours, paddled back and forth until 1478 laps were used up.

He wore the full regalia of the Channel splashes—goggles, fins and a special breathing mask—and was fed such dry land delicacies as soup, coffee and a tender steak fillet.

TO BREAK the monotony of the day-long grind, music was piped through a loud speaker. Steve also had the company of other club swimmers who stroked a few laps with him.

Seymore has indicated he would like to attempt a Channel crossing, but the thousands of dollars required for the excursion plus several months away from his practice are obstacles.

For Seymore's accomplishments rank with the greatest. His toss of 248 feet 10 inches with the javelin is an American record, and while Steve had declined to predict he can shatter the world mark of 258 feet 2 inches, many West Coast track experts feel he's the man to do it.

In addition to trying the 21-mile swim for conditioning purposes, Dr. Steve said he is attempting to stimulate interest in swimming among the younger athletes.

Legion Pledges Commie Fight

COLUMBUS, Mar. 15 —The Ohio American Legion executive committee is pledged today to a campaign "to stop Communist aggression everywhere."

WASHINGTON REPORT

By SENATOR ROBERT A. TAFT

The Joint Committee on the Economic Report has been holding hearings on the increases in steel prices, which followed the settlement of the steel strike and the increased pensions granted to employees by all the leading steel companies. The majority report criticizes the steel companies for this increase and recommends that a further investigation determine whether the steel companies shall now be treated as public utilities, subject to regulation as to price, services, etc.

The committee also recommends passage of a law at once providing that before any increase in price is made notice be filed 30 days in advance with the Federal Trade Commission and hearings be held on the justification for such increase.

This seems to me a fundamentally wrong approach. Our system of economic freedom is based on the maintenance of free and open competition. Prices are supposed to be determined by such competition and I believe that any general system of price regulation would destroy the entire incentive and progress of American industry.

As I see it, the only justification for government price-fixing comes when you have determined that you cannot maintain a competitive system. This is true in the case of public utilities which are natural monopolies. Of course, if competition doesn't work and some monopolist has the power to fix the price, then the public properly demands that the government do that fixing itself; but the result is generally much less progressive than is a competitive operation.

THE REAL SUBJECT which the committee should have investigated is whether competition exists in the steel industry. In my opinion the evidence clearly shows that there is a doubtful question, namely, whether the position of the United States Steel Corporation is so predominant that it has power to fix prices and at least modify the usual effect of competition. There was no conclusive evidence on this subject. If that condition does exist, however, we should consider whether we should place a limit on the proportion of any industry which can be controlled by one company, and whether it is possible to make the Sherman Act more definite and effective.

I think the Committee is wrong in giving the impression that the pension increases could be paid for by the companies.

Whether there is competition or no competition, prices are increased by any increase in cost which apply more or less generally to the entire industry. Producers certainly can not reduce their prices to less than the cost of production for any length of time even under heavy competition.

With regard to the new pension contracts there can be no doubt that the increased cost to the steel companies will be reflected in higher steel prices, other things being equal. The men cannot hope to get something for nothing and we should not try to deceive either the men or the public into believing that pensions are to be paid without cost to the consumers of steel, that is, practically all the people of the United States.

It does not follow that the present price of steel may not be too high. Perhaps it was too high before the last increase. That is why we should study further the question whether there is real competition.

PROFITS ARE undoubtedly high, but this may not prove lack of competition where there has been a long period of extraordinary demand, both during the war and to make up the deficiencies of war. The falling-off of demand may very rapidly bring about the active competition which will reduce prices. Higher prices when there is extraordinary demand are not inconsistent with competition. They may even be desirable temporarily to provide the money to build the additional facilities so that further production may meet the demand and restore more active competition.

The Joint Committee on the Economic Report should make a much more objective study than it has and should abandon its strong inclination in favor of a planned and controlled economy. Liberty and competition are and should remain the guide for higher wages and living standards in the United States.

Starvation Now At End In Arizona Camp

PHOENIX, Mar. 15 — The shadow of hunger is gone today from the Avondale farm labor camp near Phoenix.

In addition, every one of the nearly 100 children reported near starvation in the camp last week has new clothes and shoes, thanks to an outpouring of money and supplies in response to public disclosure of poverty in the camp.

The children were brought to a department store Saturday for the clothing.

Sunday, for the first time in many weeks, church pews and the rough wooden benches of the camp Sunday school were crowded.

Every child, except 25 too ill to leave their crude shacks, gave thanks for the emergency help.

Meanwhile, legislative action on proposals for long-range aid for destitute families at the Avondale and other labor camps is anticipated this week. The Arizona legislature is in special session here.

Stork Running Far Ahead Of Death Here

Births more than doubled deaths in Pickaway County during February.

A total of 39 births were recorded in the county during the month while only 19 deaths were recorded.

Boys outnumbered girls almost two-to-one during the period, with a total of 25 boys born and only 14 girls. Of the total, 34 were born in Circleville while the remaining five were born in the county.

The city ranked lower than the county in deaths during February.

Zanesville. The OSU senior is to begin work with the gas company March 27 and will be graduated by the university June 2.

Only eight occurred in Circleville while 11 were recorded in the county. One of the deaths in the county occurred in Orient State School.

The age range of deaths for both city and county was greatest in the 51-60-years-old and the 81-90-years-old groups, each of which had five during the month. Second high was the 61-70-years-old group with four.

Complete age range of deaths for the month is: 1-5-years-old, one; 31-40-years-old, one; 51-60-years-old, five; 61-70 years old, four; 71-80-years old, one; 81-90-years-old, five; and 91-100-years-old, two.

The statistics were compiled by Mrs. Harriett Wallace of the city health department and Mildred Wolfe of the county health department.

God healed him.

"I passed his wounds, and God healed him," was the modest statement of the great French physician Paré. It was he who first insisted on cleanliness and fresh air for his patients.

These things now are accepted as the minimum essentials for health, although in the sixteenth century they were revolutionary. Medical science has traveled a long road since the days of Paré. Some diseases have been eliminated, others drastically curtailed. Given full co-operation, physicians could eradicate many of the infectious diseases still rampant today. It is up to you to take advantage of the knowledge your physician possesses.

PARTY TROUBLES

ADOPTION by the Republican Party policy committee of its mild plank on fair employment practices, and successful substitution of a comparable bill in the house for the administration FEPC bill, apparently will not end the party's troubles with that issue. New York state Republicans are dissatisfied with the official party stand. They have been thinking of registering a protest, perhaps by the Republican-controlled state legislature, perhaps in the form of a special message from Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, titular head of the party. In either case, their standpoint may be summed up briefly: "New York dissents".

To this can be added the words of another prominent Republican, a candidate for the presidential nomination in 1948 and held to be seeking it again in 1952: This is Harold E. Stassen, now president of the University of Pennsylvania. Rejecting Senator John W. Bricker's suggestion of a fusion between Republicans and Dixiecrats, former Governor Stassen said:

"Our party cannot contemplate and shall not consummate a fusion with those forces in our country, affiliated by name with the opposition party, who seek to join with us partially to protect economic freedom for themselves, but even more to deny true freedom to others in their midst."

Regardless of the merits of fair employment legislation, the project has attained wide popularity in industrial areas. This fact may be worth bearing in mind when political forecasters resume their prophecies as to coming elections.

GOOD-LUCK NAMES

WHY HAS America's largest family, the Smiths, had no presidents and only one presidential candidate? At that Al Smith, defeated for reasons other than his name, at least got as far as the nomination. That is more than the Joneses, Browns and Robinsons have done.

There has been but one really common surname among the presidents, that borne by Andrew Johnson; though his near-namesake, Andrew Jackson, also had a fairly common name. So did Wilson. On the other hand, the presidential roll has been filled with such comparatively rare monickers as Washington, Jefferson, Van Buren, Fillmore, Garfield, McKinley and Roosevelt.

Johnson, be it noted, was not elected to the office, but moved up from the vice-presidency after the death of Lincoln. It may be that the Johnsons, Smiths and Browns who perhaps eye the presidency face an almost insuperable task in trying to stand out from the mass of the tribe. It might be suggested that ambitious persons pick out some unusual first name like Aristides or Epaminondas. These would be all right if others could remember or pronounce them.

These Days

Dean Acheson is now a convert to reality. After a career of error, beginning in 1941 and ending a week ago, he has finally come to a realization of the errors, but not to a recognition of his responsibility for them. His last gamble with destiny was a bad throw: He had fantastically assumed that reality was at fault and he played to lose on Mao Tze-tung.

In any country other than ours, any man who had been so consistently and obstinately wrong would have been driven from public life. He would long since have been forced to resign. All he seems to do here is to announce a change of policy, not even confessing his errors, and we are expected to accept his conversion without scrutiny or even wonder. Acheson asks us all to unite in a total diplomacy against Soviet Russia, but how can we unite with him? From 1941 until last week, he and his team-mate, Alger Hiss, were responsible for the appeasement of Russia policy. The record is clear.

Acheson, graduate of the Harvard law school, like so many others of the confused employees of our government, entered upon his career in the Treasury, where he did not agree with Mr. Roosevelt's fantastic fiscal conceptions and was dropped. In 1941, he entered the State Department as assistant secretary of state; then he became under-secretary of state, a position he held until 1947 when he resigned. He returned as secretary of state in 1949.

The Acheson influence in the State Department has been enormous. He was the smart man. His principal adjutant was Hiss. Alger's brother, Donald, became a partner in Acheson's law firm, which specialized in representing foreign countries in Washington, particularly such as had special relations with the State and Treasury Departments, Colombia, Greece, Iran, Denmark, Pakistan and Soviet Poland.

We must now go back a step to the Harold Ware Communist Cell organized in 1934. That cell was organized to penetrate high levels of administration and it is clear from the evidence at both Hiss trials that Alger Hiss was of this cell. At any rate, in 1939, Dr. J. B. Matthews of the Dies Committee gave to the Department of Justice the names of the members of the Ware cell. Among those names was that of Alger Hiss. Matthews showed me the list at the time.

Also in that year, Whittaker Chambers and Isaac Don Levine discussed most of the evidence that was brought out at both Hiss trials with Adolf A. Berle, then of the State Department. Berle has testified under oath that as early as 1941, he had warned Acheson that the loyalty of both Alger and Donald Hiss was doubtful. In 1944, Berle, then security officer of the State Department, warned Acheson and others in the State Department that their pro-Russian policy was wrong. The Acheson group, with Alger Hiss as Acheson's principal assistant, fought Berle, had him transferred to Brazil and as Berle said: "That ended my diplomatic career."

THE COMMUNIST TAG

IT IS libelous to call anyone a Communist when he is not, or when it cannot be proved that he is, an Ohio appellate court has decided. This is a sensible decision, in line with findings in other states. Now that the world has a clear idea of what Communism is like when it gets control, no term of abuse could be more shocking. Unfortunately a good many people, both in public life and private, use it freely to spatter anyone with whom they disagree. It should be reserved for those who deserve it. Otherwise it might cost money for the user, as well as anguish and loss for the victim.

Scientists Near Solution Of Tough Flight Problem

Ram-Jet-Rocket Powered Aircraft May Be Answer

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—American scientists are on the way to solving one of their toughest problems in connection with supersonic flight—practical use of the terrifically powerful ram-jet engine. The ram-jet is the simplest of the supersonic power plants, but it will not operate at speeds under 500 miles per hour.

It has no moving parts. It needs only a tremendous rush of air for compression and ignition to provide an escaping mass of air rearward to give the plane great forward thrust.

Problem has been getting the ram-jet up to speeds where masses of air enter the open nose. Until recently scientists were working on the idea of carrying the ram-jet aloft under the wings of aircraft propelled by other engines up to the 500 miles per hour mark.

Now a combination ram-jet-rocket power plant is on the drawing boards. The rocket power, limited in endurance, is used for take-off and propelling the plane to high speed quickly. At this point the ram-jet takes over.

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

SHAYNE waited on the phone, covering the mouthpiece with his hand and told Rourke, "This is our first real break. Perkins has dug up a next-door neighbor who met the lawyer and heard him discussing the estate with King in forty-three."

Shayne jerked his hand from the mouthpiece. "Hello. Mr. Klinger? I see. Hank Klinger. I guess you know what we want, Klinger. That's right. You think his name was either Norwood or Northcott. The lawyer? Right. The name of the uncle? I see. But you're fairly positive it was Los Angeles. Not San Francisco or Sacramento or San Diego. That's something. What sort of a man was the lawyer? Could you describe him... I mean how did he impress you... at the time? A shyster or...?"

Shayne's voice fell. "I understand, Mr. Klinger. I think you may have been a great help and I certainly appreciate your cooperation. He hung up and was moodily silent for a time, drumming the blunt tips of his fingers on the desk.

Rourke said, "For Heaven's sake, Mike," impatiently. Shayne shook his head. "He's not positive of very much except to swear it was Los Angeles. He remembers the Kings getting ready for the trip out there to claim the estate. The attorney advanced them cash to make the trip... and he and his wife distinctly remember Mrs. King being excited about seeing Hollywood and all the movie stars."

"The lawyer, Norwood or Northcott or something like that, made quite an impression on Klinger. He remembers him well. Nothing of the shyster about him. A big, quiet, conservative man. The kind to inspire confidence. German extraction, perhaps. Spoke with a trace of an accent, but says he spoke impeccable English."

"Are you going to call Mathews again?" asked Rourke eagerly. "and have him start checking every law office in Los Angeles with that description?" Shayne shook his head. "I think I'd better call Mathews and tell him not to waste any more time or money out there." He looked at his watch again, pushed back his chair and got up decisively. "And call the rest of them off, too. I'm becoming more and more convinced the answer to this thing lies right here in Miami and not in New York, Ohio, or California."

"Where you going?" Rourke demanded. "I've got a date with a couple of guys who may put me on the right track." Shayne got as far as the door before turning back to say, "Why don't you and Vorland meet me in Dustin's suite at the Sunlux at three o'clock. Invite Peter Painter to come, too. That'll make quite a quorum to wind this thing up... if I'm lucky."

"What about Randolph?" Rourke protested. "I've had a feeling all along..."

"Don't worry about Earl Randolph," Shayne told him grimly. "He'll be there with me for the kill."

He went down to his car and drove hurriedly to his hotel. It was just two o'clock when he went down the corridor to his apartment. Randolph was waiting out.

Harry Riffle today entered the race for the post of Sheriff of Pickaway County against Charles Radcliff.

side the door, and greeted him nervously. "You said you'd be here at two o'clock to meet me," Randolph complained. "That nurse wouldn't let me in."

"It's exactly two o'clock," said Shayne cheerfully, holding out his watch. He unlocked the door and went in humming to himself. Miss Naylor stood just inside the door with the gun in her hand. She said, "Oh, it's you, Mr. Shayne. There were dark circles around her eyes, but her eyes were bright with interest and excitement."

"I thought you were to be relieved at noon," said Shayne. "The nurse Dr. Price found... the only one available... was too young," she explained crisply. "I was afraid she wouldn't know how to use a gun." She smiled and added, "Besides, I heard you say you'd be back at two." Then she chuckled. "A nurse doesn't often have the chance to get in on... well, this detecting business."

Shayne grinned and asked, "How's our patient?" "Sound asleep. Coming along fine," Miss Naylor looked from Shayne to Randolph, hesitated, then went back to the bedroom. Shayne noticed that the door was left open a crack. He went over and closed it quietly and firmly. He said to Randolph, "All set?"

The insurance man nodded. He took a bulky envelope from his coat pocket and said, "Fifteen hundred twenties in here." From his inside coat pocket he drew a thinner envelope. "And sixteen bills in here, just as you wanted it."

Shayne took the two envelopes. "Wait for me down in the lobby while I make some final arrangements." When Randolph hesitated, he said, "The less you know about this telephone call the better off you'll be if Painter puts you on the witness stand."

Randolph nodded mutely. His distended eyes were murky and weary, and his shoulders slumped and he turned and went out the door. Shayne opened the thick envelope and counted the twenty-dollar bills swiftly and carefully. He then opened the drawer of the table in the center of the room, took out a thick sheaf of pieces of paper cut the same size as the bills. He placed the sheaf of papers and the stack of bills side by side, pressed them down to move accurately gauge their depth, then lifted off enough of the paper to make it the same thickness as the bills. He placed the paper in the envelope. Randolph had given him.

He then opened the other envelope and took out sixteen crisp thousand-dollar bills. Six of them went on top of the thirty thousand on twenties on the table, the other ten he returned to the original envelope, and put them in his inside coat pocket. He stuffed the thirty-six thousand dollars of reward money carelessly in the drawer, closed it, and went out with Randolph's envelope in his hand.

Randolph was waiting for him in the lobby. Shayne nodded and said, "Everything is fixed. We're due on the other side of the bay in fifteen minutes."

They went out to his car and drove swiftly across the bay, turned sharply south at the end of the C-seway, following a winding street along the bayfront for several blocks, thence left half a block where he pulled up to the curb and out off the ignition.

"End of the line," he told Randolph, thrusting the bulky envelope of paper clippings down behind the seat cushion so that only one corner of it protruded.

As Randolph got out, he said doubtfully, "I'm always afraid one of these things will misfire. That's a lot of money to leave in an unlocked car."

Shayne shrugged, leading the way back toward the bayfront and a small bar on the corner. "Honor among thieves," he reminded Randolph ironically. "We've got to place them to leave the bracelet in trust of the envelope if we hope to get it back at all." He looked at his watch as they entered the bar. It was exactly 2:28. They sat at a booth against the wall and ordered beer.

"My throat feels as though it had been dried out with an electric wire," he explained. "The cold beer might relieve it."

They sat in the booth for twenty-two minutes, making desultory conversation and sipping their drinks. There were a few fishermen at the bar, a scattering of tourists, and occasionally a clerk or workman from the neighborhood would slip in for a quick smoot and then dart out again.

At 2:50, Shayne gulped down the last of his drink and said, "Let's go."

Randolph paid the bill and they went out. Shayne's car was just where he had left it. Randolph started walking rapidly, but Shayne restrained him with a hand on his arm, and the insurance man slowed to fall in step with his long, slow strides.

They reached the car together, and Randolph jerked the door open. The envelope lay on the front seat and clippings were scattered all over the seat and the floorboard. He stared at them disbelievingly, picked up a couple and let them flutter away in the breeze. "I don't understand this, Shayne," he exclaimed nervously. "These slips of paper! Cut to look like bills. The bracelet isn't here! Did you try to pull a fast one by substituting this paper..."

Shayne shoved Randolph aside and stuck his head in the door. "Wait a minute," he said roughly. "That's what they want you to think. It looks as though they had brought it along, and left it lying here to give you the idea I'd done it. An excuse for not returning the bracelet."

"Oh, Shayne!" There were tears of rage and of disappointment in Randolph's bulging and murky eyes. "I trusted you to arrange this. I gave my personal word of honor to the main office that this wasn't a gyp game and that we'd get the bracelet back."

"Stop your yapping," Shayne moved back and said, "Get in," and went around to get under the steering wheel. He slammed the door, started the motor, and roared away eastward. His face was gaunt, his jaw firmly set, and his knobby hands gripped the wheel as though they would tear it apart.

Randolph slumped beside him, flaccid, unnerved and inert. All life seemed to have flowed out of his body.

55 Women Attend Style Show Given At Country Club Bridge Luncheon

3 Models Are Used

Fifty-five members and guests attended the style show presented at the Pickaway Country Club annual Guest Day bridge luncheon Tuesday.

Guests were seated at small tables decorated in the St. Patrick's Day color scheme. Centering each table was a lighted green candle. The luncheon followed out the colors also.

The style revue, with Mrs. Richard Jacek, Mrs. A. C. Tootle, Mrs. Harry Barton and Miss Margaret Boggs serving as models, took place during the luncheon. Suits were worn first by the models who changed later to dress combinations. Models displayed suits and coats on their third round.

Mrs. Jacek wore a glen plaid suit, a navy dress with flowered sash and a navy blue wool novelty weave suit with pale yellow topper.

Mrs. Tootle displayed a plain navy suit, silk print with black overskirt and a navy blue silk with white trim worn under a red topper.

Mrs. Barton modeled an oatmeal tweed suit, a blue dress with large white collar, a yellow and blue checked jacket, plain blue skirt and yellow belted topper.

Miss Margaret Boggs wore a red gabardine suit, oatmeal shantung over dark polka-dot brown crepe outfit and a three-piece gray and yellow suit.

Winning prizes at a canasta were Mrs. Ned Griner, Mrs. Nettie Patterson and Mrs. George Young.

Bridge prize winners were Mrs. Paul Rodenfels, Mrs. Joe Smith and Miss Boggs.

Surprise gifts were awarded to Mrs. Charles Schneider and Miss Mary Heffner.

Committee in charge of arrangements was made up of Mrs. E. W. Hedges, chairman, Mrs. J. M. Hedges, Mrs. Lawrence Athey, Mrs. Dudley Carpenter and Mrs. P. C. Routzahn.

Out-of-county guests were Mrs. Emerson Cheek of Arlington, Mrs. Roy Van Camp of Lebanon, Mrs. Joseph Smith of Columbus, Mrs. Rodenfels and Mrs. Marvin Rosamann of Washington, D. C.

Clothes were provided by Sharff's store.

Parisian Hints Yanks Should Be More Choosey

CINCINNATI, Mar. 15—Mlle. Helen Terre of Paris believes the basic distinction between women's fashions in France and the U. S. lies in the contrast between promotion and choice.

She told Cincinnati interviewers yesterday: "I think America is the country of promotion. France is the country of choice."

"The French designer asks himself, 'what will the French women like to wear?' and then he goes about creating such a style. An American buyer will purchase a Parisian model, bring it back to the United States, then go about promoting its sale to the women here."

"No one tells the French girl what she should wear. She looks at the model, feels the material, then either buys or leaves it alone."

"The American woman is lost in quantity. Everything is offered to her. The French woman is lost in Parisian side streets, trying to find just the creation she wants."

OES Chapter Holds Parley

Decorations in keeping with St. Patrick's Day were used by Mrs. E. S. Shane and her committee who were responsible for refreshments served during the social hour at the meeting of Circleville chapter, Order of Eastern Star, Tuesday evening.

Lighted green tapers in a series of black holders formed the tables decorations.

The worthy matron, Mrs. Homer Reber, and the worthy patron, Homer Reber, were in charge of the business session and initiatory work.

A donation of $10 was voted to Red Cross.

Guests were presented from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. and Lithopolis.

March 28 will be date of the next meeting.

Miss Strupper Is Married

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Strupper of Tarlton of the marriage of their daughter, Beulah, to Darley Winland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Craton Winland of Laurelville Route 1.

The ceremony took place in the parsonage of the Rev. H. D. Frazier of Adelphi March 10. Mr. Winland is engaged in farming. The couple will live in the Laurelville community.

Child Study Club Planning Drama

Circleville Child Study Club announced this week it again would sponsor a production by the famed Barter theatre.

Mrs. John Heiskell, president of the group, said this year's live actor drama would be "The Showoff," a tale of the flapper era. It will be given April 20 in the high school auditorium.

at which Roscoe Walcutt, state senator from this district, will be speaker.

LOSES 60 LBS. EASILY BUCYRUS LADY PLEASD

"Rennel Concentrate sure has helped me," writes Miss Rose Strawser, 523 E. Warren St., Bucyrus, Ohio. "I have lost 60 pounds in about six months. I'm sure I could have lost weight faster if I had watched my diet, but I continued to eat everything I wanted and as much as I wanted."

Hundreds of others have obtained similar relief from the social and physical discomforts of being overweight. Why not try this effective yet inexpensive method of reducing and enjoy the pleasure of feeling younger and more alive. Try Rennel and notice the admiring looks you will receive from your friends as your figure becomes younger and your vitality increases. Just go to your drugist and ask for 4 ounces of liquid Rennel. Pour the contents into a pint bottle—add enough unsweetened grapefruit juice to fill the bottle and then take two tablespoonful twice a day. That's all there is to it. If you aren't satisfied with the results, return the empty bottle to the manufacturer and your money will be refunded. You need never know a hungry moment while taking Rennel—no starvation diet—no printed diet list to buy—no vitamins to fortify you against weakness while going hungry, for you WON'T be hungry. Insist upon genuine Rennel.

Looking Ahead

By George Benson
President
Harding College

This period in world history may well be recorded as the era of the Great Hubblebaloos for economic security. Future historians will never be able to relate, however, that the politicians of this or any other day discovered a magic formula for making everybody healthy, wealthy and free "at the sound of the gong." The bedrock realities of life block fulfillment of any such politician's pipe dream or promise.

Economic security simply can't be spooned out of a bottle like patent medicine. And it isn't a gift to be bestowed without strings attached. It's something to work for, something that can be had only when and as it is produced.

Behind the economic security of every man, every family, every group, must be somebody's productive effort, somebody's thrift, somebody's conserved wealth. The government can only give to one man what it takes from him, or another, or both: for the American kind of government doesn't produce wealth.

There are two notable nations today in which the government is providing for the economic security of all the people. These are, of course, Britain and Russia. Any American worker, middle man, executive, school teacher or lawyer might go to either country and obtain politically-guaranteed economic security—full employment, old age pensions, free medical care, etc. But who wants to go; who in America, indeed, wants that kind of security at the price demanded?

AND YET WE must do more than merely reject the dangerous palliative of the political planners. We must set about calmly and unhurriedly to find a road along which we can travel safely toward the goal of economic security which is a basic motivation of all mankind. But Jamestown to Yorktown, America's historic freedom road was two centuries long and costly. Because of that freedom we have come a long way on the security road.

In the area of big industry, where the present headlong drive for pensions and other security benefits is concentrated, there assuredly should be pension and life and medical insurance programs soundly calculated.

Employees should contribute from salaries and wages to programs in which they participate. No person has the right to demand a secure old age, medical and hospital service and life insurance, unless he is willing, while able, to contribute to the cost.

When a company is obliged through pressure of one kind or another to pay all the cost without any corresponding increase in productivity or decrease in production cost, then the public has to stand the bill. My neighbor has just bought a good $2.95 axe at the hardware store. When the recent steel price hike, brought on by the pensions granted last December, is extended to the retail price, the same axe will sell for at least $3.25, the store owner told him. Files and many other steel implements already have gone up, the hardware man said.

SO THOSE WHO buy axes will be contributing about 20 cents each (best estimate) of their money to the steel workers' pension fund. When we consider the price boosts on other all steel implements, the coal miners' pensions and others which are also directly reflected in higher retail prices, we can see an accumulating problem. Those in the working consumer group not pensioned will seek relief or recourse.

But where will they go? Right now some are turning to the political security medicine men—and that is dangerous, as can be witnessed in Russia and England.

There are also the problems in the area of small business where employee groups will naturally try to follow the example of their counterparts in big industry. The problems here have a hundred angles.

If we are wise, our citizenry will not let the political hubblebaloos rush us and trap us. It took nearly 200 years for Americans to establish freedom. We can well afford to spend considerable time on this second great goal—security. Rushing into it too fast, without calculating the costs, might wreck our economy and bring insecurity to all.

Einstein Now 71 Years Old

PRINCETON, N. J., Mar. 15—Dr. Albert Einstein, who believes birthday celebrations "are for children," became 71 yesterday, followed normal routine. His secretary, Miss Helen Dukas, said the only recognition of the birthday came from friends dropping in to offer congratulations. The white-haired author of the theory of relativity is a member of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton university.

YOUTH SHOW FIZZLING?

Reds Seem To Be Slowing Berlin War Tub-Thumping

BERLIN, Mar. 15—Another potentially important indication that Soviet Russia is toning down her aggressive approach for the present at least became evident here today.

Communist Party leaders and particularly backers of the Red Youth Movement in Eastern Germany were pictured as beset with confusion because of Moscow's failure to support fully a propagandistic "march" on Western Berlin scheduled for May 28.

Preparations for the demonstration have been underway for weeks.

Youth leaders in Eastern Berlin recruited half a million followers for a gigantic show which was to have culminated in an attempt to invade the American, British and French sectors.

They counted on support of the Soviet-trained East German police, who have been equipped with jackboots and taught again the goose-stepping march of Imperial and Nazi Germany.

They also demanded use of the former Olympic Stadium in the British sector for their initial gathering.

In the case of the police, they found a singular lack of enthusiasm.

So far as the British were concerned, they met with a flat refusal.

AND UNITED States military officials made clear that any attempt at forcible seizure of Western Berlin would in turn be met with force. Now Moscow appears to have adopted a lukewarm attitude.

Latest reports are that Soviet Russia seems inclined to soft-pedal the whole plan so far as it might involve the Western sectors.

Reasons behind this apparent attitude are somewhat obscure.

It is noteworthy, however, that all of Russia's leading Politburo members, in speeches preceding Sunday's single-slate elections, divided their emphasis between an alleged desire for world peace and presumed Soviet supremacy in all fields of atomic development.

The controlled Soviet press seems anxious to jump at any mention, no matter how far-fetched, of a possible new international conference on world problems.

Orders from above appear responsible for the fact that the recent so-called "baby blockade" of Berlin was allowed to fizzle out before it had done anything more than to annoy the Western Powers.

Well-informed sources in London and Paris reported several months ago that a Russian "peace offensive" could be expected this Spring and Summer.

Several reasons were advanced—a growing movement to support Titoism in the satellite nations, severe labor and production difficulties and social unrest at home, plus the more sinister possibilities that the Russians were playing for time in preparation for a vast new coup somewhere in the world.

What actually lies behind current Soviet policies is difficult to ascertain, to say the least. But if the reported Berlin move is any criterion, the Kremlin apparently has decided to cease its warlike tub-thumping for the present anyway.

Homesick Girl Is Being Held

CLEVELAND, Mar. 15—A 16-year-old New Jersey girl, who became homesick during a movie, is being held by Cleveland authorities today pending her return to Kearny.

The girl, Theresa Gennace, gave herself up to police late yesterday after watching scenes in a movie concerning a deserted mother. She said she came to Cleveland last week after difficulties with her parents.

Dogs And Blondes Shun You? Maybe It's Your Vibrations

VIENNA, Mar. 15—If beautiful blondes run away at your approach; if dogs growl at you without explanation, cheer up, maybe it's not your face after all.

Might be your vibrations — "body radar."

That is the theory put forward today by Austrian Psychologist Dr. Hubert Rohrer.

er, who says the human body sends out minute vibrations that, for good or ill, affect all our daily lives.

"At some future date," said Dr. Rohrer, who has written tomes on the subject, "man may have to memorize his 'vibration quota' just as he now mentally jots down his shoe size, blood group, or pulse beat."

The 47-year-old psychologist admitted that "this is rather futuristic, but it may be the eventual result of research now under way."

Tests already undertaken, Dr. Rohrer said, "have established the fact that there can be no mistake as to the existence of body vibrations." He went on:

"The existence of such vibrations leads to a number of hypotheses which may look fantastic at first sight, but which are very plausible."

"It is very likely that the vibrations emanated by man, and relayed to the air that surrounds him, play an important role in creating sympathy or antipathy between two persons, depending on whether their vibrations correspond or do not correspond."

"It also can readily be assumed that the body vibrations are responsible for the relaying of pitched-up emotions from one person to another, which thus may explain the hysteria of mass meetings."

Dr. Rohrer said it is also possible that the mysterious ability of blind persons to "feel" an obstacle before they actually touch it may be caused by the reflection of their own "vibration radar."

"From a physical point of view," he stated, "the process is nothing but vibration of sound whose frequency is so low the human ear cannot hear

it. Animals, however, can probably hear the vibrations emanated by humans as a very low sound. This may explain the astounding scent of some animals. He said:

"The vibrations, which are very minute, can be neither seen nor felt."

"Their frequency varies from person to person at 7 to 18 cycles per second. There is no typical difference of the vibrations between men, women or children, except that their constancy varies from person to person."

Which seems to mean that if you are having trouble in your personal relations — with blondes or dogs, among others — you may just be operating on the wrong frequency.

New Plants Talked Industries Eye Local Sites

Possibility of persuading at least two new industries to move into Circleville was discussed Monday during a meeting of the local Chamber of Commerce.

A. V. Osborne, chairman of the chamber's new industries committee, reported that interest in the now vacant New Idea plant has increased.

He said that manufacturers from Cleveland and Erie, Pa., have queried the committee about the plant. He said the Cleveland firm employs "about 100 persons, mostly women, in its present location." Nature of the business was not revealed.

The Erie firm, Osborne said, probably would employ about 165 men if located in Circleville. The firm produces metal parts for washing machines. Osborne quoted representative of the company as saying the move away from Erie was desired because the company had outgrown its property there, had no further room to expand.

"They were much impressed with the New Idea plant," Osborne continued. "But they wanted to know what the Chamber of Commerce would offer as an inducement to bring them here."

"THEY SAID that other towns had offered such things as a building constructed to their specifications, 20 years to pay for it and five years free of expenses, rent or taxes."

"I told them that if they had been offered that, they should go there. But I also pointed out that in Circleville they would find no labor troubles, that they would have no transportation difficulties."

Osborne said the New Idea plant has about 27,000 feet of factory floor space and about 1,400 feet of office floor space. He said sale of the plant is being handled by a Columbus realtor.

Screen Moppet Admits Hoax

HOLLYWOOD, Mar. 15—Screen Moppet Lora Lee Michel, who said she fled her foster parents home in pajamas because "they beat me" and "I was always hungry," confessed today that it was all a fantasy.

The nine-year-old star, who had ravenously gulped milk and food to support her story of maltreatment told Juvenile Court Judge A. A. Scott that the scratches on her leg were received in the filming of a recent movie and not from a thrashing at the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Michel.

Newsmen, who saw the $100-a-day star enact her role, termed it a "wonderful scene" worthy of a screen "Oscar."

2 Army GIs Plead Innocent

SALZBURG, Austria, Mar. 15—Two American Army enlisted men, one from New York and the other from Bolivar, Mo., pleaded innocent today at a public court martial on charges of kidnapping an Austrian and handing him over to the Russians.

According to the Army, both men, Sgt. John Franky, 29, of New York City, and Cpl. Paul Abel, 26, of Bolivar, confessed when arrested Feb. 10.

The Army said they had admitted kidnapping Oswald Eder, Viennese civilian, for the Russians and were paid $250. The men face life imprisonment if found guilty by a jury of seven officers and five enlisted men.

RISE IN STately ELEGANCE, the new United Nations secretariat building in New York is almost ready for occupancy. In the foreground of this future monument to world peace are rows of steel posts marking the sites of other UN structures which will soon be erected.

YANK POLICIES HIT

Poland Asks To Withdraw As World Bank Member

WASHINGTON, Mar. 15—The World Bank announced today that Communist-dominated Poland has asked to withdraw as a member of the international lending agency.

A bank announcement said that the request was made in a letter to the bank by Polish Ambassador J. Winiewicz. The bank said the letter "has been referred to the board of directors and that a reply would be made in due course."

The World Bank is composed of 48 member nations, four of which are located in Eastern Europe. They are Finland, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

China, although controlled by a Communist government, is still represented on the board of governors of the bank by Nationalist representatives.

In its letter requesting withdrawal from membership, the Polish government charged the bank with "political discrimination" in its lending policy. The Polish ambassador asserted that "the bank has violated its statutory requirements." He added:

"THE BANK has in no way contributed to the reconstruction of nations ravaged by war and has adopted its policy entirely to the needs and directions of the United States government to the detriment of the other countries."

Winiewicz asserted that "a glaring instance of this is the question of the loan to Poland." He said:

"The Polish government fulfills all the conditions imposed by the articles of agreement. Despite this, as is generally known, the bank refused to grant Poland a loan, because Poland rejected the proposition of acceding to the so-called Marshall Plan, which had as its aim the subordination of Europe to the United States and the rebuilding of the war potential of Germany."

"Today there can be no possible doubt as to the injurious political and economic results of this plan."

Bank spokesmen declined to discuss any phase of Polish negotiations regarding a loan. They declined further to say whether an application had been made for a loan.

The Polish ambassador continued in his communication that the bank made loans to the Marshall Plan countries designed "to a large extent for consumption purposes" which he said was "contrary to the distinct provisions" of the bank's articles.

And he charged that the bank "clearly supports the expansion of American capital in the territories of those nations and openly opposes the basic conditions namely the principle of their political sovereignty and the principle of their industrialization."

Williamsport Set For Second Building Parley

Williamsport school patrons are scheduled to meet at 8 p. m. Thursday in the school auditorium to discuss plans for building a new athletic plant.

Superintendent Jud Lanman of the Williamsport school said a meeting was held last Thursday for the same purpose, but that the session was poorly attended and nothing was settled. The superintendent explained that a $45,000 bond issue for construction of an athletic plant was passed in 1945, but that a series of restrictions plus the prohibitive cost of building materials has threatened to stymie the plans.

At present, physical education is at a minimum in the Deer Creek Township school, and all home basketball games are played in the community's Sulphur Springs Pavilion.

Lanman and the Williamsport board of education are expected to be present to lead discussion on the proposed building program. A representative for the contractor also is expected to attend to quote probable building costs.

WALLACE PREFERS ARMY

Another Officer Quits Local Police Department

One of Circleville's most promising young police officers quit his post Wednesday to enlist into the U. S. Army.

Officer Earl Wallace, who joined the local force July 8, 1949, turned in his badge at 4 a. m. Wednesday.

The resignation of Wallace whittles down the law enforcement staff of Circleville to six policemen and Police Chief William F. McCrady.

Wallace said the resignation was not because of the conflict between the department and Circleville city council but "because of higher wages, better chances of advancement and the better retirement system" of the Army.

Officer Elmer Merriman, one of the six remaining fulltime officers on city pay, has been absent from duty for several weeks because of an eye injury which required surgery. He is in a Columbus hospital.

Circleville first learned that the prospect of losing Wallace from its police ranks was probable Feb. 27 when Charles Scott, another recent addition to the force, resigned to continue law study in Franklin university in Columbus.

SCOTT'S RESIGNATION followed a new assignment of hours posted by Chief McCrady which the officer claimed would not permit him to carry on his studies.

Wallace enlisted for a three-year hitch in the Army Tuesday in Columbus. He is scheduled to

Price Of Coal Being Hiked By Most Dealers

A poll of Circleville coal dealers Wednesday revealed that most establishments have raised the per-ton price of coal from 25 to 40 cents. One dealer indicated he would not raise prices.

Reason given for the price increases was the recent coal strike, with a jump in wages paid miners and consequent upsurge of coal prices at the mines. All but one of the Circleville coal dealers said they had coal on hand.

Consumers of coal mined in the Martins Ferry area also will have to pay from 25 to 40 cents more per ton. The Lorain Coal and Dock raised its price 25 cents per ton and the Hanna Coal Co. added 10 cents to the ton. Dealers will add 15 cents per ton to the price charged them by wholesalers.

James Hyslop, Hanna president, said his increase was low because he was hopeful of keeping more markets from turning to gas and oil.

2 Crashes Kill 12 RAF Fliers

LONDON, Mar. 15—Twelve British military fliers were killed today when two Lincoln bombers crashed in separate areas during training flights.

One bomber crashed in Northern Wales, killing all seven crewmen. The plane plummeted on the Llewellyn peak of Snowdon mountain near Carnedd, about 40 miles southwest of Liverpool.

A short time later a second bomber crashed near the Hems-well RAF station near Lincoln. Five of the crewmen were killed. A sixth was injured.

Ohio Quakers Deduct 'War' Levy From Tax

XENIA, Mar. 15—The government is going to be out some of its regular quota when it begins tabulating the 1949 returns of Mrs. Caroline F. Urie and six of her "peacemaker" followers.

Mrs. Urie, a Quaker widow of Yellow Springs, and six other Yellow Springs Quakers are refusing to pay that portion of their income taxes which they figure the government will use for war purposes.

Mrs. Urie is an old hand at this sort of thing. Twice before she has deducted the 30-odd percent "war purposes" portion from her total payment.

Two years ago Mrs. Urie filed an estimate for 1948 income and paid her entire tax, less 34.6 percent she thought would be used for "war purposes." However, the rate was reduced that year, and inadvertently she actually paid her entire tax.

Last year she filed an estimate and "reduced" 32.3 percent before starting payment on a quarterly basis. Thus, she will not become officially delinquent in payments until tomorrow.

Others who are joining the widow in non-payment this year include Dr. and Mrs. Horace Champney, the Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Templin and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dyer.

New City Rule Book Due Off Press Soon

Circleville police and firemen next week are expected to be handed printed instructions for keeping their feet on the path of duty.

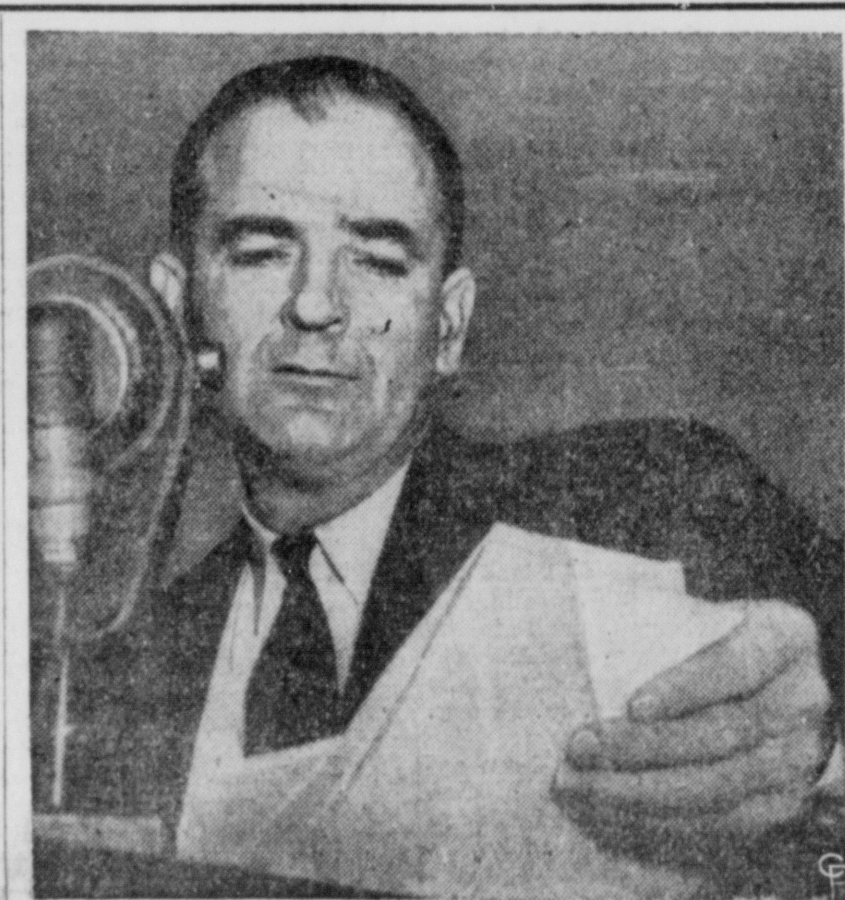

Safety Director C. O. Leist said a book of rules detailing the way police officers and firemen must conduct themselves while on duty is expected to be off the press early next week.

"In general," said Leist, "the rules follow those in effect in Columbus. There are no provisions for rank in the book, beyond that of the chief and the mention of a desk sergeant."

"It will be understood that whoever is on desk duty will be acting in the capacity of a desk sergeant. The book also defines emergency duties for police and firemen."

The safety director said about 50 books will be printed, half to be passed out, the rest kept on hand as replacements.

No officer will be able to say he lost his book—without being issued another one.

THIS IS SENATOR Joseph McCarthy, (R) Wis., who has been getting headlines recently with his long list of alleged Communist sympathizers employed by the U. S. State Department. Denials have been vehement. A Senate committee is continuing the probe, will hear all those labeled pink by McCarthy.

RED DUE TO LEAVE MONDAY

Gubitchev Changes Mind Again; He's Going Home

NEW YORK, Mar. 15—Counsel for Valentin Gubitchev, first Soviet citizen ever convicted of spying in the United States, announced today that Gubitchev is going back to Russia after all.

Just yesterday it was announced that Gubitchev, facing 15 years in prison if he did not leave this country within two weeks, planned to stay and fight his conviction with an appeal.

Today's new turnabout was announced to Federal Judge Sylvester Ryan and U. S. Attorney Irving Saypol by Gubitchev's lawyer, Abraham L. Pomerantz. The announcement apparently means that Gubitchev's departure—now rescheduled for Monday on the Polish Liner Batory—will be on the U. S. government's terms. This means his appeal from his conviction will be withdrawn.

Saypol had insisted that if Gubitchev persisted in his appeal, he could not return to Russia. Yesterday, Pomerantz said the appeal would not be withdrawn and that Gubitchev would remain while it was fought out in the high courts.

IT WAS THE contention of Saypol that Gubitchev, by going back to Russia but at the same time pressing his appeal, was trying to "have his cake and eat it, too."

Today's announcement by Pomerantz was made without any apparent new consultation with Gubitchev himself.

The court session was brief, taking but five minutes. Pomerantz was accompanied by Yuri Novikov, third secretary to the Soviet embassy in Washington.

Gubitchev will be taken under heavy guard to the Batory Monday after Judge Ryan, in a technical procedure, reimposes sentence upon him and formally announces its suspension.

Meanwhile, Judith Coplon, 28, the Justice Department political analyst who also was sentenced to a 15 year term as a co-defendant with Gubitchev, remained in the women's house of detention in Greenwich Village. Efforts to raise $40,000 bail for her freedom pending appeal were unsuccessful yesterday.

Johnson, chairman of the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, said he would wait a few days before setting hearings on his bill to protect public morals through control of what he termed the "mad dogs" of the movie industry.

In a Senate speech, Johnson attacked the Italian-made movie as a "stupid film about a pregnant woman and a volcano."

He termed its producer and father of Ingrid Bergman's child, Roberto Rossellini, "vile and unspeakable" and a "home wrecker."

In Rome, Rossellini expressed surprise that the Bergman-Rossellini-Stromboli story had been brought into the official American record. He declared: "Senator Johnson said so much. He said everything. He threw the book at us. There's little I can say."

WASHINGTON, Mar. 15—Sen. Johnson, (D) Colo., awaited public reaction today to his torrid assault on the film "Stromboli" and his fiery denunciation of those connected with it.

Crites Due To Head Committee

Fact-Finders Seen Working Quickly

Names of an investigating committee to probe into the doings of Circleville police department were revealed Wednesday by President of City Council Ben Gordon.

Appointed as chairman of the three-councilman committee was George Crites, whose fiery charges against Police Chief William McCrady set off the firecracker chain of events leading to a council order for a full-blown investigation of the cop shop.

Gordon appointed Councilmen Ray Cook and Walden Reichelderfer as the other two members of the committee.

Gordon said he had given no instructions to the committee on when it should start its probe. However, it is assumed Chairman Crites will lose little time in calling the investigation and getting the whole affair fully aired as quickly as possible.

"The committee, I believe, represents a pretty good cross-section of both sides of the affair," said Gordon. "With a balancing factor, to boot."

Cook previously has plugged for moderation in the drive to oust the police chief from office, which the councilmen do not deny is the main point sparking the investigation.

IT WAS AT COOK'S insistence that council agreed to a committee meeting with the fiery Irish cop boss last month. The meeting, out of which came only defiance from McCrady, was held to discuss a pending ordinance to reduce the chief's pay from $211.75 per month to $150.

Reichelderfer, however, has been described as "an unknown quantity." He has had little to say on the subject, either in council or out.

The order for an investigation of the police department came during the last regular session of council, following a request from a former city patrolman, Charles Scott.

The ex-cop appeared before the legislators to request that a probe be made into "gross inefficiency and malpractice in the police department."

Scott, who resigned as a police officer the day before he appeared in council, suggested that council appoint an investigating committee, and that the committee call individual members of the police department in and give each a chance to air his opinion.

The ordinance to reduce the chief's salary was introduced in council before Christmas by

Crites Due To Head Committee

Councilmen George Crites and Ray Anderson. It states that the chief under Ohio statutes receives compensation in addition to the regular salary paid by the city, and gives the reason for the cut as a desire on the part of council to equalize the salaries of "various city employees upon the basis of their positions."

CRITES EXPLAINED that under state law the chief is entitled to a portion of the costs of some cases tried in mayor's court. He said that with this added to his regular salary, McCrady makes more than Fire Chief Talmer Wise.

But the storm which was generated in council with introduction of the pay reduction bill, calmed after Emmitt Crist, attorney for Chief McCrady, informed the city fathers that passage of the ordinance would result in immediate filing of a lawsuit against the city. The matter appeared finished when the bill was tabled Feb. 7, the date it was due to come up for third reading.

One councilman declared council had been "out-bluffed." But on Feb. 21, near the end of a long run-of-the-mill session, Crites rose, clutching a sheaf of notes.

With a lengthy speech he waded the matter to hurricane proportions, urged his colleagues to order the salary bill off the table for third reading and vote. Crites, during his speech, charged McCrady with:

1. Protecting local gamblers.
2. Threatening to suspend patrolmen who asked permission to do something about gambling.
3. Refusing to cooperate with other law enforcement officials.
4. Bungling the job of lifting fingerprints.
5. Not enforcing parking meter laws.
6. Tearing up parking tickets.
7. Failing to wear proper uniform.

Lacquer Coating Given Volumes

A sharp, penetrating odor permeated Pickaway County probate court Wednesday.

It came, Judge George D. Young explained, from lacquer being applied to 140 legal volumes to prevent deterioration. Work was being done by Edwin H. Sweeney of Stewart, who said the work would be completed in one day.

The volumes, which included Ohio State Reports and Ohio Jurisprudence, were oiled first, then given a coating of lacquer. "Some of them have a sheepskin binding," Judge Young said, "and if the bindings are allowed to dry, they begin to flake off. They stay serviceable longer if kept oiled."

8 More Rabid Skunks Reported

Number of rabid animals discovered in Pickaway County in 1950 was swelled to 25 Wednesday with the report of eight more diseased skunks.

Harry Riffle, county dog warden, said laboratory tests were positive on skunks killed on the farms of Ralph DeLong of Washington Township; Fred Garrett of Salt Creek Township; Sterling Hoffer of Pickaway Township; Richard Jones of Salt Creek Township; Merle Poling of Pickaway Township; Charles Pugsley of Washington Township; Kenneth Wolford of Pickaway Township; and N. ty firm, Feible-Wears. Asking price reportedly is about $115,000.

Chamber members agreed that inducements to manufacturers to move plants here were not to be offered. They would "offer cooperation, but no money, no credit."

Conditions in Circleville were compared with industrial centers in the East. Concentration of industry, a competitive labor market, an unfavorable tax situation and the presence of Communism were parts of the picture painted of eastern cities.

But in Circleville, the chamber agreed, a new industry would be entering a peaceful community where Communism is non-existent, where there is no strife or labor unrest and where the labor problem is not top-heavy.

Osborne also reported that a Columbus concern, employing about 1,000 men, is still showing interest in the Circleville area for a factory. A 30-acre site is being sought by the firm, which he did not identify.

THE COMPANY, if it decided to move here, would employ about 500 men, he said. The plant in Columbus employs about 1,000.

The firm, Osborne added, has also shown interest in factory sites in London, Lancaster and other cities within a 25 mile radius of Columbus. "But they are still much impressed with Circleville," he said.

The site in which the company is interested reportedly is an area south of the GE plant and east of the Norfolk and Western Railway. The property is owned by a fertilizer company which, according to Lester May, chamber president, purchased the land with the intention of building a plant there, but never went through with the project.

May appointed a committee to work out details of printing sheets of informative material about Circleville to be mailed to out-of-town persons requesting information concerning the town.

Another committee was appointed to work out details of establishing a Chamber of Commerce office here.

The chamber set closing hours for Circleville stores on Good Friday at from 1 to 3 p. m. this year.

Arrangements for requiem mass in St. John the Evangelist church in Columbus have not been completed.

Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery, Columbus.

Autoist Cited After Crash With Cyclist

A 24-year-old Williamsport Route 1 man was injured at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday on East Franklin street when his motorcycle was struck by an approaching auto.

Officer Rod List said the accident happened in front of the Circleville fire department involving an auto driven by Margaret Strawser, 27, of 360 Weldon avenue, and a motorcycle operated by A. R. Westenbarger of near Williamsport.

List said the auto had been travelling west on Franklin street and was on the wrong side of the street, hitting the Westenbarger motorcycle head-on.

Westenbarger was thrown to the pavement by the impact and rolled against a parked car, the officer said. The cyclist was taken to Berger hospital, where he was treated for abrasions of the forehead and nose.

The auto driver was released on $25 bond on an accusation of reckless operation filed in mayor's court.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

If the man who was yard detective at the East River tugboat terminal 40 years ago will drop around to my office, I'd like to present him with a pair of down-front tickets for the show playing at my theatre.

What did the yard dick do to rate these front-row ducats? Well, I can't answer that one without sketching in a bit of my bumptious background.

The year Senator Taft's pop became President, the Roses were living in a railroad flat on the lower East Side—four rooms in a row, each with a window that leaked cold climate.

Our central heating system consisted of a squarish stove in the kitchen, and the cost of coal being what it was (15 cents a bag), it was seldom that the home fires were burning.

Most of the time I went around the house with a lady's stocking stretched over my ears, but when it got so blustery that even that didn't help, I would stick an old flour bag into my pants, ease my way into the yard back of the tugboat terminal south of Manhattan Bridge, and swipe as much coal as I could carry from the piles used to fire the boilers of the tugs.

Then, as now, I was built close to the ground and fast as all get-out, so I usually got away clean as a clicker from the yard detective—an oyster-faced little man whose idea of a good time was to catch two coal thieves at once and knock their heads together.

ONE MURDEROUSLY cold February, I was stuffing a sack with choice chunks of anthracite when the dick sneaked up and caught me black-handed.

"Don't ya know what happens to kids who steal?" he said.

I could have told him they get warm, but decided not to.

"Don't tell me—let me guess," he went on. "Ya got a poor old mother and unless ya bring home some coal she'll catch her death of cold."

"How'd ya know?" I said.

"I also suppose yer old man hasn't worked in six months."

"It ain't that long," I said, "but he don't make much even when he does work."

"A dozen times a day I hear the same story," said the yard detective. "I know it like I know my name."

Suddenly, to my unbelief, he handed me the bag of coal and walked away. "Don't let me catch ya again," he said.

As I got to the gate he yelled,

down the front and a belt clear around the middle.

What did I do with the dollar? Well, there was a little cutie on Rivington Street who had never given me a tumble, and so I offered to buy her a hot chocolate at Slifkin's drugstore.

"You mean you got money?" she said.

"I not only got for hot chocolate," I bragged, "but for movies and after, maybe, ice cream."

"That would be peachy," said the little doll, flashing the kind of smile that in later years I had to give up diamonds to see.

Well, there it is, the nasty little secret I've been harboring for 40 years. I won't go so far as to say it's been keeping me awake nights, but—well, I'd feel a lot better if the old yard detective were to pick up those down-front ducats.

Feel Tired? Medic Says Try Swim

Swim Of 21 Miles
Steady, That Is

LONG BEACH, Cal., Mar. 15 — The next time you have that tired, run-down feeling, try this formula prescribed by and for Dr. Stephen A. Seymore:

Run a little bit for exercise—say four miles a day, and taper off with a swim—say 21 miles without stopping.

That's what the noted osteopathic surgeon, who, as plain Steve Seymore holds the American javelin championship, uses as his conditioner for track meets.

Dr. Seymore recently made his "English Channel" swim—in the 75-foot pool of the Pacific Coast Club.

The distance is the same as that from Dover, England, to Gris-Nez, France, the busy-travelled route of Channel swimmers.

Steve, who remained in the pool from 15 to 17 hours, paddled back and forth until 1478 laps were used up.

He wore the full regalia of the Channel splashes—goggles, fins and a special breathing mask—and was fed such dry land delicacies as soup, coffee and a tender steak filet.

TO BREAK the monotony of the day-long grind, music was piped through a loud speaker. Steve also had the company of other club swimmers who stroked a few laps with him.

Seymore has indicated he would like to attempt a Channel crossing, but the thousands of dollars required for the excursion plus several months away from his practice are obstacles.

For Seymore's accomplishments rank with the greatest. His toss of 248 feet 10 inches with the javelin is an American record, and while Steve had declined to predict he can shatter the world mark of 258 feet 2 inches, many West Coast track experts feel he's the man to do it.

In addition to trying the 21-mile swim for conditioning purposes, Dr. Steve said he is attempting to stimulate interest in swimming among the younger athletes.

Legion Pledges Commie Fight

COLUMBUS, Mar. 15 — The Ohio American Legion executive committee is pledged today to a campaign "to stop Communist aggression everywhere."

The executive committee, representing 750 Ohio Legion posts, adopted a resolution Sunday urging President Truman "to state to the world that America will lead the fight for freedom by not allowing any further aggression against free peoples."

WASHINGTON REPORT

By SENATOR ROBERT A. TAFT

The Joint Committee on the Economic Report has been holding hearings on the increases in steel prices, which followed the settlement of the steel strike and the increased pensions granted to employees by all the leading steel companies. The majority report criticizes the steel companies for this increase and recommends that a further investigation determine whether the steel companies shall now be treated as public utilities, subject to regulation as to price, services, etc.

The committee also recommends passage of a law at once providing that before any increase in price is made notice be filed 30 days in advance with the Federal Trade Commission and hearings be held on the justification for such increase.

This seems to me a fundamentally wrong approach. Our system of economic freedom is based on the maintenance of free and open competition. Prices are supposed to be determined by such competition and I believe that any general system of price regulation would destroy the entire incentive and progress of American industry.

As I see it, the only justification for government price-fixing comes when you have determined that you cannot maintain a competitive system. This is true in the case of public utilities which are natural monopolies. Of course, if competition doesn't work and some monopolist has the power to fix the price, then the public properly demands that the government do that fixing itself; but the result is generally much less progressive than is a competitive operation.

THE REAL SUBJECT which the committee should have investigated is whether competition exists in the steel industry. In my opinion the evidence clearly shows that there is a doubtful question, namely, whether the position of the United States Steel Corporation is so predominant that it has power to fix prices and at least modify the usual effect of competition. There was no conclusive evidence on this subject. If that condition does exist, however, we should consider whether we should place a limit on the proportion of any industry which can be controlled by one company, and whether it is possible to make the Sherman Act more definite and effective.

I think the Committee is wrong in giving the impression that the pension increases could be paid for by the companies.

Whether there is competition or no competition, prices are increased by any increase in cost which apply more or less generally to the entire industry. Producers certainly can not reduce their prices to less than the cost of production for any length of time even under heavy competition.

With regard to the new pension contracts there can be no doubt that the increased cost to the steel companies will be reflected in higher steel prices, other things being equal. The men cannot hope to get something for nothing and we should not try to deceive either the men or the public into believing that pensions are to be paid without cost to the consumers of steel, that is, practically all the people of the United States.

It does not follow that the present price of steel may not be too high. Perhaps it was too high before the last increase. That is why we should study further the question whether there is real competition.

PROFITS ARE undoubtedly high, but this may not prove lack of competition where there has been a long period of extraordinary demand, both during the war and to make up the deficiencies of war. The falling-off of demand may very rapidly bring about the active competition which will reduce prices. Higher prices when there is extraordinary demand are not inconsistent with competition. They may even be desirable temporarily to provide the money to build the additional facilities so that further production may meet the demand and restore more active competition.

The Joint Committee on the Economic Report should make a much more objective study than it has and should abandon its strong inclination in favor of a planned and controlled economy. Liberty and competition are and should remain the guide for higher wages and living standards in the United States.

Starvation Now At End In Arizona Camp

PHOENIX, Mar. 15 — The shadow of hunger is gone today from the Avondale farm labor camp near Phoenix.

In addition, every one of the nearly 100 children reported near starvation in the camp last week has new clothes and shoes, thanks to an outpouring of money and supplies in response to public disclosure of poverty in the camp.

The children were brought to a department store Saturday for the clothing.

Sunday, for the first time in many weeks, church pews and the rough wooden benches of the camp Sunday school were crowded.

Every child, except 25 too ill to leave their crude shacks, gave thanks for the emergency help.

Meanwhile, legislative action on proposals for long-range aid for destitute families at the Avondale and other labor camps is anticipated this week. The Arizona legislature is in special session here.

Stork Running Far Ahead Of Death Here

Births more than doubled deaths in Pickaway County during February.

A total of 39 births were recorded in the county during the month while only 19 deaths were recorded.

Boys outnumbered girls almost two-to-one during the period, with a total of 25 boys born and only 14 girls. Of the total, 34 were born in Circleville while the remaining five were born in the county.

The city ranked lower than the county in deaths during February.

Zanesville. The OSU senior is to begin work with the gas company March 27 and will be graduated by the university June 2.

Only eight occurred in Circleville while 11 were recorded in the county. One of the deaths in the county occurred in Orient State School.

The age range of deaths for both city and county was greatest in the 51-60-years-old and the 81-90-years-old groups, each of which had five during the month. Second high was the 61-70-years-old group with four.

Complete age range of deaths for the month is: 1-5-years-old, one; 31-40-years-old, one; 51-60-years-old, five; 61-70 years old, four; 71-80-years old, one; 81-90-years-old, five; and 91-100-years-old, two.

The statistics were compiled by Mrs. Harriett Wallace of the city health department and Mildred Wolfe of the county health department.

God healed him.

"I DRESSED HIS WOUNDS, and God healed him," was the modest statement of the great French physician Paré. It was he who first insisted on cleanliness and fresh air for his patients.

These things now are accepted as the minimum essentials for health, although in the sixteenth century they were revolutionary. Medical science has traveled a long road since the days of Paré. Some diseases have been eliminated, others drastically curbed. Given full co-operation, physicians could eradicate many of the infectious diseases still rampant today. It is up to you to take advantage of the knowledge your physician possesses.

PARTY TROUBLES

ADOPTION by the Republican Party policy committee of its mild plank on fair employment practices, and successful substitution of a comparable bill in the house for the administration FEPC bill, apparently will not end the party's troubles with that issue. New York state Republicans are dissatisfied with the official party stand. They have been thinking of registering a protest, perhaps by the Republican-controlled state legislature, perhaps in the form of a special message from Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, titular head of the party. In either case, their standpoint may be summed up briefly: "New York dissents".

To this can be added the words of another prominent Republican, a candidate for the presidential nomination in 1948 and held to be seeking it again in 1952. This is Harold E. Stassen, now president of the University of Pennsylvania. Rejecting Senator John W. Bricker's suggestion of a fusion between Republicans and Dixiecrats, former Governor Stassen said:

"Our party cannot contemplate and shall not consummate a fusion with those forces in our country, affiliated by name with the opposition party, who seek to join with us partially to protect economic freedom for themselves, but even more to deny true freedom to others in their midst."

Regardless of the merits of fair employment legislation, the project has attained wide popularity in industrial areas. This fact may be worth bearing in mind when political forecasters resume their prophecies as to coming elections.

GOOD-LUCK NAMES

WHY HAS America's largest family, the Smiths, had no presidents and only one presidential candidate? At that Al Smith, defeated for reasons other than his name, at least got as far as the nomination. That is more than the Joneses, Browns and Robinsons have done.

There has been but one really common surname among the presidents, that borne by Andrew Johnson; though his near-namesake, Andrew Jackson, also had a fairly common name. So did Wilson. On the other hand, the presidential roll has been filled with such comparatively rare monickers as Washington, Jefferson, Van Buren, Fillmore, Garfield, McKinley and Roosevelt.

Johnson, be it noted, was not elected to the office, but moved up from the vice-presidency after the death of Lincoln. It may be that the Johnsons, Smiths and Browns who perhaps eye the presidency face an almost insuperable task in trying to stand out from the mass of the tribe. It might be suggested that ambitious persons pick out some unusual first name like Aristides or Epaminondas. These would be all right if others could remember or pronounce them.

MARCH OF EVENTS

Scientists Near Solution
Of Tough Flight Problem

Ram-Jet-Rocket Powered
Aircraft May Be Answer

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—American scientists are on the way to solving one of their toughest problems in connection with supersonic flight—practical use of the terrifically powerful ram-jet engine.

The ram-jet is the simplest of the supersonic power plants, but it will not operate at speeds under 500 miles per hour.

It has no moving parts. It needs only a tremendous rush of air for compression and ignition to provide an escaping mass of air rearward to give the plane great forward thrust.

Problem has been getting the ram-jet up to speeds where masses of air enter the open nose. Until recently scientists were working on the idea of carrying the ram-jet aloft under the wings of aircraft propelled by other engines up to the 500 miles per hour mark.

Now a combination ram-jet-rocket power plant is on the drawing boards. The rocket power, limited in endurance, is used for take-off and propelling the plane to high speed quickly. At this point the ram-jet takes over.

● BLACK GOLD BLACK MARKET—Reports circulating in Washington indicate that the soft coal strike has produced a rash of black markets where the asking price for the fuel is 20 to 40 per cent above the regular market.

These Days

Dean Acheson is now a convert to reality. After a career of error, beginning in 1941 and ending a week ago, he has finally come to a realization of the errors, but not to a recognition of his responsibility for them. His last gamble with destiny was a bad throw: He had fantastically assumed that reality was at fault and he played to lose on Mao Tse-tung.

In any country other than ours, any man who had been so consistently and obstinately wrong would have been driven from public life. He would long since have been forced to resign. All he seems to do here is to announce a change of policy, not even confessing his errors, and we are expected to accept his conversion without scrutiny or even wonder. Acheson asks us all to unite in a total diplomacy against Soviet Russia, but how can we unite with him? From 1941 until last week, he and his team-mate, Alger Hiss, were responsible for the appeasement of Russia policy. The record is clear.

Acheson, graduate of the Harvard law school, like so many others of the confused employees of our government, entered upon his career in the Treasury, where he did not agree with Mr. Roosevelt's fantastic fiscal conceptions and was dropped. In 1941, he entered the State Department as assistant secretary of state; then he became under-secretary of state, a position he held until 1947 when he resigned. He returned as secretary of state in 1949.

The Acheson influence in the State Department has been enormous. He was the smart man. His principal adjutant was Hiss. Alger's brother, Donald, became a partner in Acheson's law firm, which specialized in representing foreign countries in Washington, particularly such as had special relations with the State and Treasury Departments, Colombia, Greece, Iran, Denmark, Pakistan and Soviet Poland.

We must now go back a step to the Harold Ware Communist Cell organized in 1934. That cell was organized to penetrate high levels of administration and it is clear from the evidence at both Hiss trials that Alger Hiss was of this cell. At any rate, in 1939, Dr. J. B. Matthews of the Dies Committee gave to the Department of Justice the names of the members of the Ware cell. Among those names was that of Alger Hiss. Matthews showed me the list at the time.

Also in that year, Whittaker Chambers and Isaac Don Levine discussed most of the evidence that was brought out at both Hiss trials with Adolf A. Berle, then of the State Department. Berle has testified under oath that as early as 1941, he had warned Acheson that the loyalty of both Alger and Donald Hiss was doubtful. In 1944, Berle, then security officer of the State Department, warned Acheson and his principal assistant, fought Berle, had him transferred to Brazil and as Berle said: "That ended my diplomatic career."

THE COMMUNIST TAG

IT IS libelous to call anyone a Communist when he is not, or when it cannot be proved that he is, an Ohio appellate court has decided. This is a sensible decision, in line with findings in other states. Now that the world has a clear idea of what Communism is like when it gets control, no term of abuse could be more shocking. Unfortunately a good many people, both in public life and private, use it freely to spatter anyone with whom they disagree. It should be reserved for those who deserve it. Otherwise it might cost money for the user, as well as anguish and loss for the victim.

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

SHAYNE waited on the phone, covering the mouthpiece with his hand and told Rourke, "This is our first real break. Perkins has dug up a next-door neighbor who met the lawyer and heard him discussing the estate with King in forty-three."

Shayne jerked his hand from the mouthpiece. "Hello. Mr. Klinger? I see. Hank Klinger. I guess you know what we want, Klinger. That's right. You think his name was either Norwood or Northcott. The lawyer? Right. The name of the uncle? I see. But you're fairly positive it was Los Angeles. Not San Francisco or Sacramento or San Diego. That's something. What sort of a man was the lawyer? Could you describe him? I mean how did he impress you at the time? A shyster or...?"

Shayne's voice fell. "I understand, Mr. Klinger. I think you may have been a great help and I certainly appreciate your cooperation." He hung up and was moodily silent for a time, drumming the blunt tips of his fingers on the desk.

Rourke said, "For Heaven's sake, Mike. Impatiently. Shayne shook his head. "He's not positive of very much except to swear it was Los Angeles. He remembers the Kings getting ready for the trip out there to claim the estate. The attorney advanced them cash to make the trip... and he and his wife distinctly remember Mrs. King being excited about seeing Hollywood and all the movie stars."

"The lawyer, Norwood or Northcott or something like that, made quite an impression on Klinger. He remembers him well. Nothing of the shyster about him. A big, quiet, conservative man. The kind to inspire confidence. German extraction, perhaps. Spoke with a trace of an accent, but says he spoke impeccable English."

"Shayne shook his head. "I think I'd better call Matthews and tell him not to waste any more time or money out there." He looked at his watch again, pushed back his chair and got up decisively. "And call the rest of them, too. I'm becoming more and more convinced the answer to this thing lies right here in Miami and not in New York, Ohio, or California."

"Where you going?" Rourke demanded. "I've got a date with a couple of guys who may put me on the right track."

Shayne got as far as the door before turning back to say, "Why don't you and Voorland meet me in Dustin's suite at the Sunlux at three o'clock. Invite Peter Painter to come, too. That'll make quite a quorum to wind this thing up... if I'm lucky."

"What about Randolph?" Rourke protested. "I've had a feeling all along..."

"Don't worry about Earl Randolph," Shayne told him grimly. "He'll be there with me for the kill."

He went down to his car and drove hurriedly to his hotel. It was just two o'clock when he went down the corridor to his apartment. Randolph was waiting out.

Britain Prime Minister Winston Churchill today predicted victory for the Allies in the European theatre this Summer.

TEN YEARS AGO

The treasury department reported today that the 1939 income tax "take" is about $230 million less than last year's.

Harry Riffle today entered the race for the post of Sheriff of Pickaway County against Charles Radcliff.

side the door, and greeted him nervously. "You said you'd be here at two o'clock to meet me," Randolph complained. "That nurse wouldn't let me in."

"It's exactly two o'clock," said Shayne cheerfully, holding out his watch. He unlocked the door and went in humming to himself.

Miss Naylor stood just inside the door with the gun in her hand. She said, "Oh, it's you, Mr. Shayne. There were dark circles around her eyes, but her eyes were bright with interest and excitement."

"I thought you were to be relieved at noon," said Shayne. "The nurse Dr. Price found... the only one available... was too young," she explained crisply. "I was afraid she wouldn't know how to use a gun." She smiled and added, "Besides, I heard you say you'd be back at two." Then she chuckled. "A nurse doesn't often have the chance to get in on... well, this detecting business."

Shayne grinned and asked, "How's our patient?" "Sound asleep. Coming along fine," Miss Naylor looked toward Shayne to Randolph, hesitated, then went back to the bedroom.

Shayne shook his head. "He's not positive of very much except to swear it was Los Angeles. He remembers the Kings getting ready for the trip out there to claim the estate. The attorney advanced them cash to make the trip... and he and his wife distinctly remember Mrs. King being excited about seeing Hollywood and all the movie stars."

"And call the rest of them, too. I'm becoming more and more convinced the answer to this thing lies right here in Miami and not in New York, Ohio, or California."

"Where you going?" Rourke demanded. "I've got a date with a couple of guys who may put me on the right track."

Shayne got as far as the door before turning back to say, "Why don't you and Voorland meet me in Dustin's suite at the Sunlux at three o'clock. Invite Peter Painter to come, too. That'll make quite a quorum to wind this thing up... if I'm lucky."

"What about Randolph?" Rourke protested. "I've had a feeling all along..."

"Don't worry about Earl Randolph," Shayne told him grimly. "He'll be there with me for the kill."

He went down to his car and drove hurriedly to his hotel. It was just two o'clock when he went down the corridor to his apartment. Randolph was waiting out.

Shayne opened the thick envelope and counted the twenty-dollar bills swiftly and carefully. He then opened the drawer of the table in the center of the room, took out a thick sheaf of pieces of paper and the same size as the bills. He placed the sheaf of papers and the stack of bills side by side, pressed them down to move accurately gauge their depth, then lifted off enough of the paper to make it the same thickness as the bills. He placed the paper in the envelope Randolph had given him.

He then opened the other envelope and took out sixteen crisp thousand-dollar bills. Six of them went on top of the thirty thousand in twenties on the table, the other ten he returned to the original envelope, and put them in his inside coat pocket. He stuffed the thirty-six thousand dollars of reward money carelessly in the drawer, closed it, and went out with Randolph's envelope in his hand.

Randolph was waiting for him in the lobby. Shayne nodded and said, "Everything is fixed. We're due on the other side of the bay in fifteen minutes."

They went out to his car and drove swiftly across the bay, turned sharply south at the end of the C-seway, following a winding street along the bayfront for several blocks, thence left half a block where he pulled up to the curb and cut off the ignition.

"End of the line," he told Randolph, thrusting the bulky envelope of paper clippings down behind the seat cushion so that only one corner of it protruded.

As Randolph got out, he said doubtfully, "I'm always afraid one of these things will misfire. That's a lot of money to leave in an unlocked car."

Shayne shrugged, leading the way back toward the bayfront and a small bar on the corner. "Honor among thieves," he reminded Randolph ironically. "We've got to trust them to leave the bracelet in place of the envelope if we hope to get it back at all." He looked at his watch as they entered the bar. It was exactly 2:28. They sat at a booth against the wall and ordered beer.

"My throat feels as though it had been dried out with an electric wire," he explained. "The cold beer might relieve it."

They sat in the booth for twenty-two minutes, making desultory conversation and sipping their drinks. There were a few fishermen at the bar, a scattering of tourists, and occasionally a clerk or workman from the neighborhood would slip in for a quick snort and then dart out again.

At 2:50, Shayne gulped down the last of his drink and said, "Let's go."

Randolph paid the bill and they went out. Shayne's car was just where he had left it. Randolph started walking rapidly, but Shayne restrained him with a hand on his arm, and the insurance man slowed to fall in step with his long, slow strides.

They reached the car together, and Randolph jerked the door open. The envelope lay on the front seat and clippings were scattered all over the seat and the floorboard. He stared at them disbelievingly, picked up a couple and let them flutter away in the breeze. "I don't understand this, Shayne," he exclaimed nervously. "These slips of paper! Cut to look like bills. The bracelet isn't here! Did you try to pull a fast one by substituting this paper...?"

Shayne shoved Randolph aside and stuck his head in the door. "Wait a minute," he said roughly. "That's what they want you to think. It looks as though they had a bundle of this stuff made up, brought it along, and left it lying here to give you the idea I'd done it. An excuse for not returning the bracelet."

"Oh, Shayne!" There were tears of rage and of disappointment in Randolph's bulging and murky eyes. "I trusted you to arrange this. I gave my personal word of honor to the main office that this wasn't a gyp game and that we'd get the bracelet back."

"Stop your yapping," Shayne moved back and said, "Get in," and went around to get under the steering wheel. He slammed the door, started the motor, and roared away eastward. His face was gaunt, his jaw firmly set, and his knobby hands gripped the wheel as though they would tear it apart.

Randolph slumped beside him, flaccid, unnerved and inert. All life seemed to have flowed out of his body.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The taxpayer who has improperly filled out his income tax form in this last minute rush need not give it a second thought. He'll hear from it.

That's why they call it a "tax return." If the government doesn't like it they can always return it for more taxes.

The President sent his return in early then went off to Key West to forget. The first day out it was so rough he also forgot to eat.

You can imagine how rough it was when a reporter heard him murmur, "If Dewey had won I wouldn't be here."

55 Women Attend Style Show Given At Country Club Bridge Luncheon

3 Models Are Used

Fifty-five members and guests attended the style show presented at the Pickaway Country Club annual Guest Day bridge luncheon Tuesday.

Guests were seated at small tables decorated in the St. Patrick's Day color scheme. Centering each table was a lighted green candle. The luncheon followed out the colors also.

The style revue, with Mrs. Richard Jacek, Mrs. A. C. Tootle, Mrs. Harry Barton and Miss Margaret Boggs serving as models, took place during the luncheon. Suits were worn first by the models who changed later to dress combinations. Models displayed suits and coats on their third round.

Mrs. Jacek wore a glen plaid suit, a navy dress with flowered sash and a navy blue wool novelty weave suit with pale yellow top.

Mrs. Tootle displayed a plain navy suit, silk print with black overskirt and a navy blue silk with white trim worn under a red top.

Mrs. Barton modeled an oatmeal tweed suit, a blue dress with large white collar, a yellow and blue checked jacket, plain blue shirt and yellow belted top.

Miss Margaret Boggs wore a red gabardine suit, oatmeal shantung over dark polka-dot brown crepe outfit and a three-piece gray and yellow suit.

Winning prizes at canasta were Mrs. Ned Griner, Mrs. Nettie Patterson and Mrs. George Young.

Bridge prize winners were Mrs. Paul Rodenfels, Mrs. Joe Smith and Miss Boggs.

Surprise gifts were awarded to Mrs. Charles Schneider and Miss Mary Heffner.

Committee in charge of arrangements was made up of Mrs. E. W. Hedges, chairman, Mrs. J. M. Hedges, Mrs. Lawrence Athey, Mrs. Dudley Carpenter and Mrs. P. C. Routzahn.

Out-of-county guests were Mrs. Emerson Cheek of Arlington, Mrs. Roy Van Camp of Lebanon, Mrs. Joseph Smith of Columbus, Mrs. Rodenfels and Mrs. Marvin Rosamann of Washington, D. C.

Clothes were provided by Sharff's store.

LOSES 60 LBS. EASILY BUCYRUS LADY PLEASD

"Rennel Concentrate sure has helped me," writes Miss Rose Strawser, 823 E. Warren St., Bucyrus, Ohio. "I have lost 60 pounds in about six months. I'm sure I could have lost weight faster if I had watched my diet, but I continued to eat everything I wanted and as much as I wanted." Hundreds of others have obtained similar relief from the social and physical discomforts of being overweight. Why not try this effective yet inexpensive method of reducing and enjoy the pleasure of feeling younger and more alive. Try Rennel and notice the admiring looks you will receive from your friends as your figure becomes younger and your vitality increases. Just go to your druggist and ask for 4 ounces of liquid Rennel. Pour the contents into a pint bottle—add enough unsweetened grapefruit juice to fill the bottle and then take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. If you aren't satisfied with the results, return the empty bottle to the manufacturer and your money will be refunded. You need never know a hungry moment while taking Rennel—no starvation diet—no printed diet list to buy—no vitamins to fortify you against weakness while going hungry, for you WON'T be hungry. Insist upon genuine Rennel.

Looking Ahead

By George Benson
President
Harding College

This period in world history may well be recorded as the era of the Great Huddle for economic security. Future historians will never be able to relate, however, that the politicians of this or any other day discovered a magic formula for making everybody healthy, wealthy and free "at the sound of the gong." The bedrock realities of life block fulfillment of any such politician's pipe dream or promise.

Economic security simply can't be spooned out of a bottle like patent medicine. And it isn't a gift to be bestowed without strings attached. It's something to work for, something that can be had only when and as it is produced.

Behind the economic security of every man, every family, every group, must be somebody's productive effort, somebody's thrift, somebody's conserved wealth. The government can only give to one man what it takes from him, or another, or both; for the American kind of government doesn't produce wealth.

There are two notable nations today in which the government is providing for the economic security of all the people. These are, of course, Britain and Russia. Any American worker, middle man, executive, school teacher or lawyer might go to either country and obtain politically-guaranteed economic security—full employment, old age pensions, free medical care, etc. But who wants to go; who in America, indeed, wants that kind of security at the price demanded?

AND YET WE must do more than merely reject the dangerous palliative of the political planners. We must set about calmly and unhurried to find a road along which we can travel safely toward the goal of economic security which is a basic motivation of all mankind. But Jamestown to Yorktown, America's historic freedom road was two centuries long and costly. Because of that freedom we have come a long way on the security road.

In the area of big industry, where the present headlong drive for pensions and other security benefits is concentrated, there assuredly should be pension and life and medical insurance programs soundly calculated.

Employees should contribute from salaries and wages to programs in which they participate. No person has the right to demand a secure old age, medical and hospital service and life insurance, unless he is willing, while able, to contribute to the cost.

When a company is obliged through pressure of one kind or another to pay all the cost without any corresponding increase in productivity or decrease in production cost, then the public has to stand the bill. My neighbor has just bought a good $2.95 axe at the hardware store. When the recent steel price hike, brought on by the pensions granted last December, is extended to the retail price, the same axe will sell for at least $3.25, the store owner told him. Files and many other steel implements already have gone up, the hardware man said.

SO THOSE WHO buy axes will be contributing about 20 cents each (best estimate) of their money to the steel workers' pension fund. When we consider the price boosts on other all steel implements, the coal miners' pensions and others which are also directly reflected in higher retail prices, we can see an accumulating problem. Those in the working consumer group not pensioned will seek relief or recourse.

But where will they go? Right now some are turning to the political security medicine men—and that is dangerous, as can be witnessed in Russia and England.

There are also the problems in the area of small business where employee groups will naturally try to follow the example of their counterparts in big industry. The problems here have a hundred angles.

If we are wise, our citizenry will not let the political huddle rush us and trap us. It took nearly 200 years for Americans to establish freedom. We can well afford to spend considerable time on this second great goal—security. Rushing into it too fast, without calculating the costs, might wreck our economy and bring insecurity to all.

Einstein Now 71 Years Old

PRINCETON, N. J., Mar. 15—Dr. Albert Einstein, who believes birthday celebrations "are for children," became 71 yesterday, followed normal routine.

His secretary, Miss Helen Dukas, said the only recognition of the birthday came from friends dropping in to offer congratulations.

The white-haired author of the theory of relativity is a member of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton university.

YOUTH SHOW FIZZLING?

Reds Seem To Be Slowing Berlin War Tub-Thumping

BERLIN, Mar. 15—Another potentially important indication that Soviet Russia is toning down her aggressive approach for the present at least became evident here today.

Communist Party leaders and particularly backers of the Red Youth Movement in Eastern Germany were pictured as best with confusion because of Moscow's failure to support fully a propagandistic "march" on Western Berlin scheduled for May 28.

Preparations for the demonstration have been underway for weeks.

Youth leaders in Eastern Berlin recruited half a million followers for a gigantic show which was to have culminated in an attempt to invade the American, British and French sectors.

They counted on support of the Soviet-trained East German police, who have been equipped with jackboots and taught again the goose-stepping march of Imperial and Nazi Germany.

They also demanded use of the former Olympic Stadium in the British sector for their initial gathering.

In the case of the police, they found a singular lack of enthusiasm.

So far as the British were concerned, they met with a flat refusal.

Homesick Girl Is Being Held

CLEVELAND, Mar. 15—A 16-year-old New Jersey girl, who became homesick during a movie, is being held by Cleveland authorities today pending her return to Kearny.

The girl, Theresa Gennace, gave herself up to police late yesterday after watching scenes in a movie concerning a deserted mother. She said she came to Cleveland last week after difficulties with her parents.

The controlled Soviet press seems anxious to jump at any mention, no matter how far-fetched, of a possible new international conference on world problems.
Orders from above appear responsible for the fact that the recent so-called "baby blockade" of Berlin was allowed to fizzle out before it had done anything more than to annoy the Western Powers.
Well-informed sources in London and Paris reported several months ago that a Russian "peace offensive" could be expected this Spring and Summer.
Several reasons were advanced—a growing movement to support Titoism in the satellite nations, severe labor and produc-

Finger Wags At Half-Mile Tracks

Mile Privileges Being Sought

COLUMBUS, Mar. 15—Half-mile harness ovals in Ohio, that have requested and received a mile track privileges, are under the fire today of the state racing commission.

Commission Chairman O. C. Belt warned yesterday that any half-mile track that has added a chute in order to operate more than 19 nights "will be expected to conduct at least one race a night over the chute."

Under state law, the maximum number of racing nights permitted a track of three quarters of a mile or less is 19. Tracks larger than three quarters of a mile may race 44.

Although Belt mentioned no courses specifically, both the Hilliards and Painesville tracks, one-half mile in circumference each, recently constructed chutes in order to advance into the classification of "tracks in excess of three quarters of a mile."

Hilliards has been granted 41 nights of racing from June 13 through July 25. Painesville is scheduled to operate 42 nights from June 12 through July 25.

The commission yesterday approved a five-day meeting of harness racing at the Delaware County Fair Sept. 18 and 22. It announced receipt of a request for 43 days of running races at the River Downs May 27 through July 15 from the Ohio State Jockey Club, Inc.

The dates sought are the same relinquished by the River Downs racing association following its sale to the Ohio Jockey Club. The commission indicated it will act favorably on the application.

GE 'Umpire' Works Out OK Except In Dark

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Mar. 15—

There's a night-blind umpire calling balls and strikes in major league baseball today.

But his vision otherwise is perfect and ballplayers can't argue with him.

He's the "electronic umpire" developed by General Electric engineers for the Brooklyn Dodgers for use at their Vero Beach, Fla., training camp.

The engineers explained today that the electronic brain lights a lamp when a ball is pitched through the strike zone. When it misses the zone the lamp remains dark.

The "ump" can be adjusted to the varying heights of the ballplayers, but it cannot function at night.

It also can measure the speed of a pitched ball—provided it goes through the strike zone.
